UNIFORM CONSUMER DEBT COUNSELING ACT

Prefatory Note

The consumer credit counseling industry arose as a means of assisting individuals to pay their credit card debt without resorting to bankruptcy and a means of enabling creditors to collect debt that otherwise would be discharged in bankruptcy. Through the 1980s the industry was financially supported almost entirely by creditors, which returned to the industry approximately 15% of the money they received through the efforts of the industry. Over the last decade, however, the industry has changed significantly. Responding to the dramatic increase in credit card debt, a new generation of credit counseling agencies arose. Reports of abuses by counseling agencies and injury to consumers appeared with increasing frequency in numerous media outlets. A report of two prominent consumer organizations (Consumer Federation of America and the National Consumer Law Center) has documented the situation. The problems include

- deception concerning the nature of, the need for, and the cost of debt-management plans to help consumers deal with burgeoning debt;
- excessive cost to consumers; and
- self-dealing and other conduct by agencies to evade the ban on private inurement that appears in the Internal Revenue Code requirements for tax-exempt status.

These problems are compounded by a drastic reduction in support for the industry by its traditional benefactors, the issuers of credit cards. This has led counseling agencies to impose on consumers an increasing share of the cost of their operations.

In January 2003 the Executive Committee of the Conference authorized the appointment of a drafting committee to develop a uniform law that would address the problems that have developed and enable the states to take a common approach to regulation of the counseling industry. A uniform approach is particularly important because the great majority of agencies operate in multiple states and would otherwise be subject to multiple and sometimes conflicting requirements.

The Drafting Committee first met in Chicago in November 2003 and considered a discussion draft. Committee members reacted to numerous aspects of that draft but the Committee did not take formal votes on any of its provisions. The Committee met again in March 2004. At the Annual Meeting of the Conference in August 2004, the drafting committee received numerous comments on the draft, and many of them are reflected in this draft. Others are identified in the Preliminary Comments. In addition, the Committee of the Whole adopted two sense-of-the-house resolutions: the scope of the Act should encompass debt-settlement companies as well ascredit-counseling agencies; and the Act should be drafted in such a way that each state may decide whether to permit for-profit entities to provide credit-counseling and debt-settlement services. This draft reflects those decisions.

Deleted: This draft reflects the deliberations and tentative decisions of the Committee at that meeting with respect to sections 1-21.

profit entities; and

Deleted: Several provisions have been revised to conform to federal and state law governing electronic communication. Further revision is contemplated.

1	UNIFORM CONSUMER DEBT COUNSELING ACT
2 3 4 5 6	Legislative Note: The state must make the basic policy decision whether to permit for-profit entities to engage in the [debt adjustment][debt management] business. This decision is implemented by virtue of the presence or absence of specified provisions in the following sections: [list to be developed].
7	SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This [act] may be cited as the Uniform Consumer Debt
8	Counseling Act.
9 10	Preliminary Comments
10 11 12 13	In view of the decision to include debt settlement companies within the scope of the Act, the Act needs a new title, e.g., Uniform Debt Adjustment Act or Uniform Debt Management Act , Deleted : and Debt Settlement Services Act¶
14 15 16	Reporter's Introductory Note to Section 2 (Definitions): There are two significant changes in the definitions:
17 18 19 20 21 22	(1) To simplify the language throughout the draft, the operative terms now are "provider," "plan," and "agreement." These terms are newly defined in Section 2, and they eliminate the need to define (and use) the cumbersome terms "debt-management-services provider," "debt-management plan," and "debt-management-services agreement." Throughout the draft, the Act now speaks simply of "provider," "plan," and "agreement."
23	(2) Because the Act now applies to both credit counseling and debt settlement, some
24	definitions have been revised to encompass both entities and their activities. For example,
25	subsection (9) defines "debt-management services" to encompass the activities of both kinds of
26	entities. Similarly, subsection (12) defines "plan" to encompass what credit-counseling agencies
27	now call a debt-management plan (or DMP) and what debt-settlement companies now call a
28	"program." As a result of these changes, "provider" now refers to both types of entities, and the
29	draft does not define or use the term "debt-settlement-services provider." At those points in the
30	draft where it is desirable to have different rules for the two types of entities, a descriptive phrase

1	differentiates them (e.g., in section 14: "if a plan contemplates that creditors will settle the debts
2	for less than the full principal amount of the debt" and "if a plan contemplates concessions in the
3	form of reduced finance charge or reduced fees for late payment, default, or delinquency."),

The definition in paragraph (2) is drawn from § 9-102(a), but it includes more relatives in the definition. The definition in Article 9 is limited to relatives who live in the individual's home. This excludes such close relatives as nieces and first cousins unless they live in the individual's home. The language in subsections (2)(D) and (3)(G) includes those relatives regardless of where they live.

At the Annual Meeting a commissioner objected to the use of "consanguinity" and suggested we look to the Uniform Adoption Act, which lists the specific relatives. At the October 2004 meeting, the Committee adopted this approach.

Paragraph (2)(E) reverts to the approach of Article 9 and uses the phrase, "occupying the residence of" rather than "residing with," which appeared in the last draft. Is this acceptable?

Another commissioner at the Annual Meeting suggested that there ought not be two definitions of the same word (viz., "affiliate") and that the Act use "relative" instead. The Committee on Style did not object to the double definition of "affiliate," and at the October 2004 meeting the Drafting Committee decided to retain it.

The definition in paragraph (3) also is drawn from the definition of "person related to" in UCC § 9-102(a), but adds subparagraph (C). Subparagraph (D) has been modified to declare that a person that receives more than $25,000 from a provider is an affiliate of that provider. Paragraph 3 also stipulates that an owner or director of the recipient is an affiliate. Since the purpose of defining "affiliate" is to require independent boards of directors and prevent self-dealing, the level of ownership necessary to constitute "affiliate" should be relatively low. Is 10 percent the appropriate level of ownership necessary to trigger this status? Similarly, is $25,000 the appropriate level of benefit? Under paragraph (3)(D) a person is not an affiliate until the person of which it is an owner, employee, or director has received $25,001 in the relevant period.

The definition of "affiliate" does not include employees of the entity. Does it suffice that officers are included in "affiliate," or does the Committee want to expand the definition further?

Paragraph (4)(agreement): This definition does not incorporate any requirement of "written" or "record." An oral agreement is within this definition. Requirements of form appear in Sections 14-16.

Paragraph (5) (bank): This definition is from UCC Revised Article 1 (§ 1-201(b)(4)).

38 Former paragraph (6)(debt-management plan), has been deleted. At the October 2004 39 meeting the Committee decided to define "debt-management plan" broadly, without reference to 40 the payment mechanism or to the kind of concessions the provider seeks to obtain for the 41 individual. Thus the definition includes what are often called debt-settlement programs. The 42 definition of debt-management plan has been replaced by new paragraph (12), which defines 43 "slar" to encompase what the provises deef called "debt mergegement plan"

43 "plan" to encompass what the previous draft called "debt-management plan."

Deleted: Consanguinity denotes a relationship in which the persons share a common ancestor. Affinity denotes a relationship in which the persons are related by marriage. Subsection 2(E) is new, to avoid the need to define "spouse." Paragraph (E) is broader than the former definition of spouse, because it does not require that the person be living with the individual "as if married."

[6] 1 2 Paragraph (8)(debt-management services): At the October 2004 meeting, the Committee 3 decided to expand the definition to encompass the activity of entities that act as an intermediary 4 between an individual and the individual's creditors, for the purpose of changing the terms of the 5 original contract between the individual and those creditors. That is, there is no requirement that 6 the individual's funds flow through the provider. The definition includes credit-counseling 7 agencies and debt-settlement companies even if they do not have control over the individual's 8 funds, as when they are in an account managed by the individual or a third party. 9

10 The definition includes credit-counseling agencies even if the concessions offered by 11 creditors are not subject to negotiation. It does not, however, encompass a creditor that 12 compromises a claim with its debtor. Although the creditor may receive money from an 13 individual, it is not for the purpose of "distributing" that money to a creditor. And the definition 14 does not encompass entities that provide only educational or counseling services concerning 15 management of personal finance.

Former paragraph (9)(debt-management-services provider) has been deleted. The relevant definition now appears in paragraph (13)(provider).

Former paragraph (10)(debt-settlement services) has been deleted. The definition of "debt-management services" encompasses the former definition of "debt-settlement services.

23 Paragraph (9) (employee): The purpose of this definition is to prevent evasion of the Act by resort to outsourcing the services necessary for running a debt-management business. The 24 25 phrase "related to debt-management services" is critical, because it has the effect of excluding 26 from the definition, e.g., an individual who makes emergency repairs to the agency's plumbing 27 system. "Services related to debt-management services" would include such things as marketing, 28 customer service, education, counseling, interaction with creditors, processing of payments by 29 individuals, and any other services provided by the agency to the individual. 30

The definition encompasses all persons who provide the specified services, regardless of 31 32 who signs the paycheck and regardless of whether the employee works on-site at the provider's 33 place of business or elsewhere (e.g., the individual's home or the site of an entity to which the 34 provider has outsourced the services). The definition does not apply in Section 4, which excludes 35 from the scope of the Act specified persons and their employees. 36

37 Paragraph (11)(person): This definition conforms to the Conference's standard definition. 38 The definition encompasses for-profit, not-for-profit, and tax-exempt entities.

39 40 Paragraph (12)(plan): At the October 2004 meeting, observers representing debt-41 settlement companies informed the Committee that they do not form plans. Instead, they provide 42 programs. The new definition of "plan" is designed to encompass both what now are typically called "debt-management plans" and the "programs" established by debt-settlement companies. 43

Deleted: 7

Deleted: At the March 2004 meeting, the sense of the Drafting Committee was that the definition should encompass those who provide only rehabilitation or counseling services and perhaps even those who only provide education about personal finance. This so broadens the definition that the Act would apply to colleges and even elementary schools that provide instruction on personal finance. The Drafting Committee still needs to decide the extent to which it desires the Act to go beyond regulating those who receive or direct the individual's money for distribution to creditors. Pending that decision, the definition does not encompass those entities that provide only educational or counseling services concerning management of personal finance

Deleted: If the definition of debtmanagement plan is revised to delete the phrase "through a debt-managementservices provider," the definition of debtmanagement services needs to be revised, too. For example: ¶

"Debt-management services" means acting as an intermediary between an individual and one or more creditors of the individual for the purpose of obtaining concessions, such as reduction of interest or principal, in the terms of payment. [The term includes debtsettlement services.]"¶

4	typically included secured debt or debts owed utilities. No provision of this Act requires that a
5	provider deal with all the creditors of an individual to whom it provides debt-management
6	services.
7
8	Paragraph (13)(provider): This definition replaces former paragraph (9)(debt-
9	management-services provider), thereby enabling reference throughout the Act to "provider,"
10	rather than its more cumbersome predecessor. The purpose of limiting the definition to persons
11	that provide or offer to provide debt-management services to more than three individuals is to
12	exclude from the scope of this Act persons who informally assist their friends or relatives by, for
13	example, accessing the individual's checking account to pay the individual's bills. A person is
14	not subject to the constraints placed on providers until it has provided or offered to provide debt-
15	management services to the fourth individual. Thereafter, the person must comply with this Act.
16	The definition does not include an entity that merely offers to provide debt-management

In this draft, except for bill-paying services, 10 attorneys, and accountants, the exemption applies even if debt-management services constitute a Deleted: debt 11 majority of the entity's business. On the other 18 hand, this structure is not always effective to protect clients. A law firm operating as a provider Deleted: debt-management-services 19 in New York and Vermont recently inflicted substantial injury on indebted consumers. As 20 originally enacted, the federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act contained an exemption for 21 lawyers. When it became clear that some attorneys were abusing this exemption, Congress 22 amended the Act to remove the exemption altogether. The sentiment of the Committee at the 23 October 2004 meeting was to exempt attorneys only if debt-management services are incidental 24 to the attorneys' overall practice A correspondent, whose letter to the Committee is posted on the Deleted: The Committee must decide whether to exempt attorneys (and others). 25 Committee's web site (www.nccusl.org/Update/CommitteeSearchResults.aspx?Committee=222) Note that the definition of debt-settlement 26 questions the soundness of the reasoning underlying this decision. The correspondent makes a services (securing creditor's assent to accepting partial payment in full 27 good point, and the Committee may wish to reconsider. satisfaction) encompasses common 28 conduct of attorneys. 29 A second issue concerning this exemption which needs further attention is whether the Field Code Changed 30 exemption should be limited to attorneys who are licensed in this state. In connection with creating an exemption for attorneys, the Conference does not ask each enacting state to make a 31 32 judgment whether that state's system of self-regulation by attorneys is effective. Rather, the 33 Conference indulges in a presumption that it is. This suggests that the Conference should not ask 34 a state to make that judgment about another state's system. It probably is desirable for the 35 exemption to encompass attorneys who are licensed in any jurisdiction. If the Committee agrees, 36 paragraph (4) could read, " a person who is licensed by a jurisdiction in the United States to 37 practice law." Cf. section 23(b)(9)(prohibited acts include furnishing legal advice unless the person furnishing the advice "is licensed to practice law"). A similar issue exists with respect to 38 39 accountants. 40 41 An earlier version of this section exempted a creditor that negotiates or receives 42 settlement of a debt an individual owes it. The definition of "debt-management services" speaks 43 of "acting as an intermediary between an individual and one or more creditors." With this

15	Subsection (a): "Form" encompasses format, and the administrator by rule may require or
16	permit all or part of the application to be submitted electronically.
18	Subsections (b)(2) and (3) refer to items "required by" other sections. If those other
19	sections do not require the item as to a particular applicant, then the application need not contain
20	proof of the item.
21
22	Subsection (b)(4) requires insurance in the amount of $250,000 against the risk of
23	employee misconduct, including theft of funds from the trust account. It is not common under
24	existing state law to require both this kind of insurance and also a bond of the type required by
25	section 12. The two requirements, however, protect against different risks. The insurance
26	required by this section protects against the risk of employee dishonesty. The proceeds of the
27	insurance policy would be payable to the provider and would enable it to continue operating. The
28	bond required by section 12 protects against the risk of violation of any provision of this Act.
29	The proceeds would be paid to or for the benefit of the administrator and the customers of the 30	provider.
31
32	The purpose of subsection (b)(5) is to facilitate subjecting a non-resident business to the
33	jurisdiction of this state. If the applicant is a resident, so that the statute referenced in this
34	subsection does not apply to it, the applicant complies with this subsection by indicating that
35	fact. If existing statutes leave doubt about the mechanism for serving process on the provider and
36	the state has chosen not to enact the language suggested in the Legislative Note, the
37	administrator can promulgate a rule requiring the applicant to appoint a state official as the
38	provider's agent for purposes of service of process.
39
40	Subsection (c): At the October 2004 meeting, the Committee decided that paragraph (1)

42	business address, it is not necessary for the applicant to list business addresses outside this state.

Paragraphs (11) and (12) require information that is current as of the time of the application. An applicant is free to modify the forms or the fees without prior approval, unless the administrator adopts a rule to the contrary. Subsection (e) of this section requires the provider

Paragraph (13); In some jurisdictions the mechanics and procedures for obtaining fingerprints are quite burdensome. This paragraph attempts to reduce the burden by permitting an applicant that has gone through this process in one state to use the results of the process for a period of 12 months in other states, too. The 12-month limitation applies to the criminal-records check, not the time of submission to the other state. The criminal-records check must include a check of fingerprints, but the fingerprints need not have been obtained during the 12-month period.

Former paragraph (16), which required an applicant to provide an irrevocable consent giving the administrator access to the trust account, has been deleted. In its place is new subsection 26(c)(4), empowering the administrator to obtain the funds, as well as all books and records, from the bank holding the trust account.

Paragraph (14); The administrator may require additional information either by rulemaking procedure applicable to all applicants or by specific request in response to a specific application.

28 Subsection (d) collects in one place additional disclosures for non-profit entities. An 29 observer at the October 2004 meeting suggested that these disclosures be required of all entities, 30 so as not to make the requirements for non-profits more onerous than for for-profits. The 31 reporter's notes from that meeting fail to reflect any decision by the Committee with respect to 32 this suggestion. Pending review by the Committee, this draft incorporates the suggestion. (If the 33 Committee's decision is to require these disclosure only of non-profits, the brackets will come 34 off in the introductory clause, and the reference to non-profits in paragraph (4) will be deleted.)

36 Subsection (e): The cross-referenced sections require evidence of insurance against 37 employee misconduct and disclosure of the name of the applicant, the addresses at which it 38 operates, enforcement action against the applicant in another state, the applicant's fee schedule 39 and standard forms, and tax-exempt status. Subsection (e) requires immediate notification of any 40 change in this information, and since it applies to the "applicant or registered provider," this 41 requirement of notification applies both before and after the administrator has issued a certificate 42 of registration. Notification of change in other required information is governed by Section 10 (Renewal of Registration), which requires notification at the time of renewal of registration. 43

Deleted: in this state, too.

Deleted: Paragraph (16) (former paragraph (24)): In the draft for the March 2004 meeting, this paragraph had two parts, one addressing accounts at a bank located in this state and one addressing accounts at a bank located in another state. If an administrator from any state seizes even a portion of the money and records, that seizure would effectively freeze the entire operation of the debt-management-services provider. Consequently, the Drafting Committee decided to collapse the two parts into one. In response to the requirements of this paragraph, it is likely that a bank would provide its irrevocable consent only if the account contains the money of individuals from a single state. This would mean that a debt-managementservices provider would have to establish a separate trust account for each state whose residents it serves. The Drafting Committee may wish to consider this further.¶

3	period, but only for a limited time. Four approaches are possible for dealing with the
4	administrator's failure to act on an application within the specified time. The first approach is to
5	treat the failure to act promptly as an approval of the application. This remedy operates to the
6	detriment of the public, and the Committee rejected it at the October 2004 meeting.
8	The second approach is the converse of deeming the application approved: the
9	application is deemed to be denied, and the applicant may exercise its right of appeal under
10	subsection (b). To implement this alternative, one would add the bracketed sentence in
11	subsection (a). This is the cleanest of the alternatives.
13	In the third approach, the bracketed sentence in subsection (a) is omitted and the
14	bracketed clause in subsection (b) is added. Subsection (b) then would authorize a judicial appeal
15	if the application is denied or if the administrator fails to act in a timely manner.
16
17	The fourth approach is to delete the bracketed material in both subsections and implicitly
18	leave the entire matter to be handled by judicial procedure, such as mandamus.

8 Preliminary Comments 9 10 Subsection (a): The requirement of a bond apples to all providers, including those that are not required to establish trust accounts. 11 12 Subsection (b): The bond is a source of payment of injuries caused by a provider's failure 13 14 to comply with this Act. It is conceivable that the administrator or an individual would not 15 commence litigation until after a provider ceases providing services in this state. This subsection preserves the availability of the bond for two years after the year in which the provider's 16 17 registration ends. Legislation in some states contains comparable provisions. E.g., 2004 Kan. 18 Sess. Laws 22 (§4(c))(2 years after the end of registration); Md. Fin. Inst. Code Ann. § 12-19 914(b)(3)(2 years after the provider ceases to be licensed). In others, it either requires the bond to 20 be continuously in force, run concurrently with the period of registration, or does not address the 21 duration of the bond. 22 23 Subsection (c): The bond runs in favor of the state for the benefit of the state and the provider's customers. Thus, it is available to compensate the administrator for its enforcement costs. The bond also runs directly in favor of customers who are injured by a provider's noncompliance with the Act. This includes individuals who reside in other states if the provider is based in this state. If the provider has no presence in this state other than its agreements with individuals who live in this state, then the benefits of the bond are limited to the administrator and residents of this state.

Subsection (d): For those providers that do not receive payments for distribution to creditors, and therefore are not required by Section 19 to establish a trust account, the bond requirement is $100,000. For others, the bond requirement is the greater of $100,000 or two times_the average daily balance in the trust account. The amount of the bond would depend on the amount received from individuals and the frequency of the provider's payment to the creditors. A provider that receives payments of $130 million per year, or $2.5 million per week,

Deleted: subsection presents the Committee with a choice. ¶ ¶ In the first, the amount of the bond approximates the average monthly amount of money that is deposited into the trust account. This may be an impossible hurdle for most providers. For example, a provider that processes payments of $120 million per year would have to post a bond of $10 million. This alternative in effect sets the bond at 16.6% of the sum of the amounts deposited during a 180-day period. A variation would be to set the bond at a lower percentage (e.g., 3%) of the amounts deposited during that period.¶ ¶ The second alternative sets the bond at three times (or other multiple of) Deleted: 120

1 and pays creditors twice a week, would have an average daily balance of approximately 2 $900,000. Its bond requirement would be $1.8 million. This alternative gives the provider an Deleted: 750,000 3 incentive to make payments to creditors on a daily basis. The administrator is free to set the bond Deleted: 2.25 4 requirement for a particular provider at a different amount. 5 6 The bond requirement under existing legislation varies widely. Many of the statutes were 7 enacted decades ago and have not been amended in this respect. These statutes often require 8 bonds of modest amounts, $10-25,000. The more recently enacted or revised legislation sets the 9 bond at much higher amounts, often to be set by the administrator in light of specified factors. 10 E.g., Connecticut ($40,000 or 2 times the highest monthly amount paid by Connecticut 11 residents); Illinois ($25,000 or the amount of disbursements during the preceding year); Kansas 12 ($25,000-1,000,000); Maine ($50,000); Maryland ($10,000-350,000); Michigan ($35,000-13 100,000); New York (minimum of $250,000); Vermont (minimum of $50,000); Virginia 14 ($25,000-350,000). This draft sets the amount of the bond at $100,000 but authorizes the 15 administrator to adjust it in either direction. This flexibility may be especially important with 16 respect to true non-profit credit-counseling agencies. 17 18 Paragraph (3) requires that the bond be conditioned upon noncompliance with the Act. 19 Nothing is payable until the administrator or an individual obtains a judicial determination that 20 the provider has failed to comply. In a typical case the surety would be joined as a party 21 defendant. Deleted: ¶ In subparagraph (3), is the phrase "or 22 its agents" necessary? 23 Subsection (e): A provider located in this state must provide a bond in an amount based 24 on the size of its trust account, which may contain funds of individuals who reside in other states. 25 The laws of those other states may require the provider to furnish a bond to protect the residents 26 of those states. This subsection provides some relief from having to provide duplicative bonds. In Deleted: reciprocity, to give the debtmanagement-services provider 27 no event, however, does the bond amount fall below the amount it would be if the provider were not located in this state. 28 Deleted: average monthly deposits by residents of this state. 29 30 Subsection (f): Special provision is made for a newly registered provider that does not have the trust account experience contemplated by subsection (d) for fixing the amount of the 31 bond. 32 Deleted: This special provision does not apply to debt-settlement-services 33 providers as to whom the bond is not 34 Subsection (h): As an alternative to posting a bond, subsection (h) authorizes the provider determined by the size of any trust account. 35 to procure insurance or, subject to the administrator's approval, a letter of credit or debt Deleted: debt-management-services 36 instruments. The requirement of approval by the administrator extends to both the securities 37 deposited and the terms of the account into which they are deposited, to ensure that they are 38 available to pay claims of injured individuals. The administrator by rule can develop the 39 mechanics for liquidating the securities and paying the proceeds to injured individuals. 40 41 Prior drafts authorized insurance with a deductible no greater than 10 percent of the face 42 amount of the policy. If the bond requirement for a particular provider were $1 million, this 43 would permit a deductible of $100,000. The burden of a deductible should not fall on the injured

30	reference to financial hardship or bankruptcy, instead requiring only that the provider reasonably
31	believe that the plan is suitable for the individual. For providers that assist the individual to repay
32	in full, this requires a determination that the individual has sufficient income to permit payment
33	to creditors after payment of living expenses, but not so much income that concessions from
34	creditors are not necessary. For providers that assist the individual to settle debts for less than
35	full payment, the suitability requirement means at a minimum that the individual does not have
36	the ability to satisfy creditors out of current income within a reasonable time

2	Paragraph (4) of the prior version required a provider to make a good faith, reasonable
3	determination that the individual can make the required payments and that creditors will
4	participate in the plan. This requirement is feasible for credit-counseling agencies but perhaps
5	not for debt-settlement companies. Therefore, the paragraph no longer requires that the provider
6	reasonably believe that each creditor will participate. It suffices that the provider honestly
7	believes that the creditor will participate. If a provider knows that a particular creditor will not
8	participate, the provider cannot in good faith believe that the creditor will participate, and
9	therefore cannot satisfy this paragraph if that creditor is included in the plan. Former paragraphs

Paragraph (4)(J): Compliance with this paragraph will mean that a provider that serves individuals in 50 states may have to have a different form for each state. Computerization of the standard document may minimize the difficulty of complying with this disclosure requirement.

Paragraph (5) requires immediate delivery of the record to the individual. If the record is electronic, delivery occurs when the provider makes it available in retrievable and printable form.

Subsection (c): Current practice by many counseling agencies is to permit termination at any time; they do not even purport to bind the individual to a contract. The draft mandates this right of termination for all providers. If the individual has an unlimited right of termination, it is questionable whether there is a contract at all. The requirement of notice may supply sufficient obligation to support a contract, but even if it does not, there is no reason why the industry, and regulation of the industry, cannot operate on the basis of agreements that are not enforceable under the common law of contracts. This Act provides the authorization for the industry, as well as the regulation of it.

For a termination to be effection under subsection (1), the individual must give written or electronic notice. Is this wise, or should oral notification suffice?

Subsection (4) is new. It requires debt-settlement companies to secure the individual's consent at the time of settling each debt. This affords the individual an opportunity to review the terms of the settlement before it becomes final.

Subsection (d): This subsection seeks to preserve the individual's common law and statutory rights against the unilateral decision of a provider to remove or restrict them. Thus an agency may not evade this Act by adopting the law of another jurisdiction. Nor may an agency contract for a distant forum or the surrender of rights or remedies under other law, including the right to proceed by way of a class action when appropriate. A statute designed to protect individuals should not permit the deprivation of important procedural and jurisdictional rights by means of a unilateral decision by the other party.

Subsections (f) through (h) derive from section 125 of the Truth-in-Lending Act, 15 36 37 U.S.C. § 1635. Subsection (f) confers a right of rescission for three days after an agreement that 38 complies with sections 16 and 23. Section 16 specifies the form and contents of the agreement, 39 and Section 23 lists prohibited conduct. Some of the prohibited conduct might be manifest in an 40 agreement, in which event the agreement would not comply with section 23. The October 2004 41 Meeting Draft provided that if the provider failed to comply with Section 16 or Section 23, the 42 right of rescission never expired. This draft provides that if the agreement fails to comply with either of those sections, the individual has 30 days in which to rescind. If the individual rescinds, 43

Deleted: With respect to any requirement of notice of termination, what should be the consequence of the individual's failure to give notice? Unless it gives the debt-management-services provider some right it would otherwise not have, the imposition of a notice requirement may be unwise: it may mislead the individual into continuing with a debt-management plan even after he or she no longer wants it. On the other hand, perhaps the requirement is desirable simply as a matter of bringing closure to the transaction.

Deleted: ¶

The prior draft gave the individual the right to modify an agreement under certain circumstances. This provision has been dropped because the right to terminate altogether may include the less drastic option of modifying the agreement. If the Drafting Committee believes that unilateral modification by the individual should be permitted, subsection (c)(1) will be modified to read "right to terminate or modify the agreement at any time."

As soon as practicable, the provider shall inform the administrator of the 8 account number of the trust account at that institution. 9 Preliminary Comments 10 11 This section requires that persons that receive money for disbursement to creditors 12 establish trust accounts. Some providers receive the money directly. Others use third parties for 13 the purpose of receiving the funds and managing the accounts. Under either model, the recipient 14 is a fiduciary and must establish a trust account. If the provider does not receive money for that 15 purpose, but instead leaves the individual in control of that money, this section does not require a trust account. The Committee must decide how to deal with money in accounts that are owned 16 17 by an individual but accessible to a provider by means of the power to initiate a debit transfer. As 18 a first step toward dealing with this, a new provision has been added, section 23(b). 19 20 Subsection (a): For providers at brick and mortar locations, it would be feasible to require the trust account to be located in this state. For providers that operate (via the Internet or 21 22 telephone) nationally out of an office not located in this state, it may be unduly burdensome to require a trust account in each state in which the provider operates. Some existing state statutes, 23 24 however, do just that. This section permits the agency to deposit money of residents of this state 25 into a trust account located in another state and containing the money of individuals who reside 26 in other states. 27 Subsection (b): As a person with a claim against a provider, the individual is a "creditor."

28 Nevertheless, the individual should have access to the trust account, but only to the extent the 29 30 provider has received money from or on behalf of the individual and has not distributed it to 31 creditors. Without this limitation, the individual's compensation out of the trust account would 32 come at the expense of other individuals whose money comprises the trust account.

33 Compensation of the individual for other loss or damage will have to come from assets of the 34 provider or the bond or other assurance required by Section 12, Because the money does not 35 belong to the provider, the trust account may not bear interest for the benefit of the provider.

The language of subsection (b) finesses the question of the process by which the individual may access the trust account. This Act leaves that question to other law, but as a creditor of the provider, the individual has whatever rights creditors generally have. In addition, the individual may be the beneficiary of action by the administrator under sections 26-27.

Subsection (c) imposes obligations on the provider. If the provider uses a third party to administer the trust account, the provider may delegate these obligations to the third party. The provider, however, is responsible for performance of the obligations and is liable if they are not performed.

12 The subsection contemplates that the agreement may establish a date by which the 13 individual must remit to the provider and a date by which the provider must remit to the 14 creditors. In paragraph (2) the cross reference to section 16 has the effect of limiting paragraph 15 (2) to credit-counseling agencies. Subparagraph (A) applies to credit-counseling agencies and requires that the agreement—and the provider's performance—must conform to the due dates 16 17 established by the creditors. It is expected that, if necessary or desirable, the provider will secure 18 the creditors' assent to modify the original due dates to maximize the feasibility of the plan. 19 Subparagraph (B) reflects the use of payment systems other than checks. Reflecting a suggestion 20 made at the October 2004 meeting, it also contemplates that the administrator may establish 21 standards of finality for those other systems, e.g., ACH transfers, money orders, et al. Does it not 22 suffice to reference the administrator's power in the Comment? If so, then the phrase at the 23 beginning of subparagraph (B) ("subject to ...") may be deleted. Do we need anything 24 comparable to paragraph (2) for debt-settlement companies? 25

Subsection (f): Section 29(b) provides that failure to maintain the amount is cause for summary suspension of registration.

At the October 2004 meeting, a member of the Committee suggested creating an exception to subsections (f) and (g) to allow a deficit in the account if the bank debits the account because of a bounced check or other reversal of a deposit. The draft does not incorporate this suggestion because if the bank reverses a credit, the provider would also debit the individual's account in the trust account. Hence, the trust account would not show a deficit. If the Committee still thinks a problem exists, the following clause could be appended to the end of subsection (f): "unless the reason for the deficit is that the bank has reversed a credit to the account."

Subsection (h): This provision has been rewritten, to remove the numerical test of failure.
 In its place is the vague standard, "reasonably apparent." Once it becomes clear that a debt settlement plan will not work, the provider must refund the individual's money. The subsection
 could be omitted, since the individual may terminate the agreement at any time, in which event the provider must return all unspent money. But if the individual is not aware of the need to give record notice of the desire to terminate, the provider might simply retain the individual's money.

SECTION 20. FEES: MONETARY LIMITS.

8 Reporter's Note: At the October 2004 meeting, the Committee began considering the desirability 9 of fee caps. Committee members and observers alike expressed wildly disparate views, from the 10 need for specific and low fee caps (because one of the biggest problems in credit counseling and 11 debt settlement is exorbitant costs to consumers) to the view that there should be no fee caps at 12 all (because the costs of doing business vary from state to state and because the operation of the 13 market will produce appropriate fees). The Committee directed the reporter to generate several 14 alternative versions of a section that addresses limitations on fees.

16 To place these alternatives in context, a brief explanation of the current state of 17 regulation of fees may be helpful. In many states the statutes enacted in the 1950s and 1960s 18 banning the business of debt-adjusting or debt-prorating are still in effect. In some of these states 19 there is no fee cap, and no need for a fee cap, because anyone engaged in the business is 20 committing in a crime. In some of these states, there is an exemption for non-profits, and there 21 may no fee limit because the legislature had in mind true non-profit institutions that would serve the public interest. Some of the 1950s-era statutes have fee limits. Of the more recently enacted 22 23 or revised statutes, fee caps are very common. Most of them apply to debt settlement as well as 24 credit counseling. 25

26 In the states with fee caps, there is provision for one or more of the following kinds of fees: set-up, monthly service, and settlement. The cap on set-up fees ranges from $25 to $75, with 27 $50 being the most common cap. The monthly fee ranges from $3 per creditor to 15% of the total 28 29 debt in a plan/program. The 15% figure dates from the 1950s-era legislation and is the most 30 commonly used figure. In states that permit debt settlement, the 15% figure often applies. Some 31 states, however, have a lower limit, sometimes stated as a percentage of the payment to the 32 creditor (3%, 6-7%, 10%) or as a dollar amount ($20-25). One state, which does not permit for-33 profits, sets fees by regulation; several (including some that permit for-profits) limit the fee to an 34 amount that does not exceed the provider's bona fide expenses; and one (NY) specifies that fees 35 must be fair and reasonable. The prevailing regulatory scheme is either a prohibition of the 36 business of credit counseling or debt settlement or a cap on the fees that those in the business 37 may charge. 38

39This draft contains three alternatives. Alternative A directs the administrator to set fee40caps. Alternative B places fee caps in the statute. Alternative C contains a soft fee cap ("fair and41reasonable") and relies on disclosure. Each alternative has multiple variations, which are not

13	At the November 2003 meeting there was some discussion of whether the Act should
14 15	state that counseling agencies are fiduciaries. An agency undoubtedly is a fiduciary with respect
16	to management and disbursement of the trust account, even without any express statement to tha	t
17	effect in the Act. The Drafting Committee postponed consideration of whether there should be a	-
18	broader statement regarding an agency's fiduciary status and, if so, exactly what that status
19	entails.
21	General principles of the law of fiduciaries include such statements as "One who stands
22	in a fiduciary relationship to another has a duty not to profit at the expense of the other" and "A
23	fiduciary has a duty to act for the benefit of the other as to matters within the scope of the 24 25	relationship." Several provisions in the Act serve to promote these principles.
25 26	(1) Section 20 limits the extent to which a provider may profit at the expense of a
20	customer.
28	(2) Section 23 prohibits
29	• misappropriation of trust funds	Formatted: Bullets and Numbering
30	<ul> <li>unauthorized debiting of a customer's bank account</li> </ul>
31	• revealing confidential information about a customer
32	deception of the customer
33	• referral fees
34	• self-dealing via affiliates.
35
36	It would not seem wise to abandon these specific provisions in favor of a vague statement that a
37	provider owes a fiduciary duty to its customers. Conversely, the addition of that vague statement
38	to the existing list in this section is likely to be either aspirational (and therefore ineffectual) or
39	productive of litigation about marginal conduct.

Paragraph (2): At the November 2003 meeting an Observer suggested narrowing "draft" to "demand draft," Under UCC $3-104 a draft is an unconditional order directing a third party to pay money to the person presenting the draft (or to the order of that person). Narrowing the exception has the effect of permitting a debt-management-services provider to receive a draft payable on demand, but not a draft directing payment on a future date. The rationale for banning promissory notes would seem to apply to drafts that are to be paid in the future. This draft therefore incorporates the suggestion and permits the use only of demand drafts.¶

Paragraphs (3)-(4): should there be an exception to these bans to permit the extension of secured or unsecured credit with respect to the provider's fees?¶

5 based on the number of times individuals hit that link. The assertion was that this is a form of 6 advertising. No change to permit this has been made in the text or the comment of this draft, 7 because the practice is indistinguishable from payment for referrals. Placing a link on the 8 provider's web site necessarily amounts to an endorsement of or referral to the owner of the 9 linked web site. It should not matter whether the referral is by electronic link or verbal 10 recommendation. The provider is free, of course, to place the link on its web site, so long as it 11 does not receive compensation from the owner/sponsor of the other web site. This distinguishes 12 disinterested advice from referrals motivated by the provider's self-interest. 13 14 Paragraph (6): At the November 2003 meeting an Observer noted that at least one 15 creditor engages in a practice that might, depending on the annual percentage rate and the 16 amount of the monthly payment, result in negative amortization. This creditor, however, forgives 17 or refunds the accrued finance charge if the individual completes the plan. Apparently, this is 18 true even if the individual ends his or her relationship with the counseling agency and self-19 administers the plan. If the individual does not self-administer it to completion, the negative 20 amortization remains. Given the high rate of non-completion of plans, the Drafting Committee 21 may wish to consider whether it is appropriate to encourage this creditor's practices by allowing 22 plans to include debts that involve negative amortization. The Virginia statute deals with this 23 general problem by prohibiting a plan that, at the conclusion of the plan, would result in negative 24 amortization. This approach would not prohibit the practice of the creditor in question. The 25 Committee has yet to consider whether negative amortization should be permitted. Now is the 26 time.

Paragraph (9): If a plan contemplates settlement of a debt for less than the full principal amount of the debt, the provider should not pay the creditor unless it receives formal acknowledgment from the creditor that the debt is satisfied. This paragraph seeks to accomplish that by barring a misrepresentation. To violate the paragraph, the misrepresentation does not have to be express. If the settlement contemplates that the creditor will be accepting installment payments, the provider must make it clear to the individual that the initial installment(s) do not settle the debt.

Paragraph (11): This paragraph prohibits false or misleading representations whether or not the provider knows of the deception. In accord with existing statutes prohibiting unfair or deceptive acts or practices, the risk of falsity or deception is on the person that makes an express statement. On the other hand, the paragraph prohibits omissions only if the omitted facts are material and are known to the provider.

Furthermore, since the fee cap for debt-settlement-services providers is a percentage of the forgiven debt, this would provide incentives to a credit counseling agency only if it could negotiate a large reduction in the debt. agency's board of directors may provide services for free or on a reduced-fee basis. To the extent this practice benefits the agency more than obtaining the services elsewhere would benefit it, the practice seems unobjectionable. Limiting the nature of the services to those specified is designed to prevent attempted evasions of the limit. At the Annual Meeting a commissioner suggested changing "at a cost less than" to "at a cost no greater than." A restraint on insider dealing is more effective if the exception is limited to below-market prices, but the Committee may wish to consider the suggestion.

The Drafting Committee may wish to consider expanding the kinds of services covered by this subsection and the kinds of insiders from whom the agency may purchase services. To the extent the agency purchases at below-market prices, the transaction is unobjectionable. The risk, of course, is re-opening the door to self-dealing.

The Committee should consider whether the prohibitions of subsection (c) and (d) are appropriate if the provider is a for-profit entity. With respect to subsection (d), is it a sufficient protection that the provider's fees are capped? The prohibition in subsection (d) reinforces the fee cap and may provide a second line of defense if an enacting state loosens or abandons fee caps.

At the October 2004 meeting, it was suggested that a provider be able to purchase goods, services, or facilities from any insider, not just directors, if the conditions of the second sentence are met. The reporter's notes fail to indicate the Committee's response to this suggestion. If the Committee wishes to pursue this approach, the paragraph might read as follows:

A provider may not purchase goods, services, or facilities from a person if an employee or affiliate of the provider owns more than 10 percent of the person, or an employee or affiliate of the provider is an employee or affiliate of the provider of the goods, services, or facilities, except that this subsection does not prohibit a provider from purchasing legal, accounting, or banking services from any supplier of those services that both (1) supplies those services generally; and (2) supplies them to the provider at a cost [no greater than][less than] the cost generally charged by the supplier of those services to other persons.

Subsection (e): The language of subsection (e) is drawn almost verbatim from the federal statute. To eliminate some of the vagueness of the terms in these provisions, it directs the courts to look to the interpretations given the federal statute. This follows the approach of statutes in more than 20 states, which direct their courts, in applying the state's unfair-or-deceptive-acts-orpractices statutes, to be guided by the federal courts' interpretation of section 5 of the FTC Act.

6	At the Annual Meeting a commissioner suggested that if this section remains, it ought to
7	specify the level of the crime (or leave that to each state) and not specify the sanction, since the
8	general criminal law specifies the sanctions. Another commissioner suggested that not all
9	violations of the Act merit criminal sanctions and this section should be narrowed accordingly. A
10	third commissioner suggested eliminating the section altogether and relying on the general
11	criminal statutes. A fourth commissioner sent a message pointing out a problem that may arise in
12	a prosecutor's ability to charge a person with a crime under this section as it existed in the 2004
13	Annual Meeting Draft. He passed on the comments of a deputy attorney general in his state:
14
15	Here are the general virtues I believe will improve statutes that include criminal sanctions:
16	(1) A statute that creates a crime should include a title that clearly and concisely describes the
17	proscribed behavior (murder in the first degree, kidnapping, robbery, etc., not "penalties");
18	(2) A clear and logical recitation of as few elements as are necessary to clearly define the
19	proscribed behavior (not 127 pages of a complex chapter followed by "any person who
20	violates this chapter shall be guilty of a misdemeanor");

4	money that was paid over to the creditors. For an overcharge, forfeiture of all amounts received

28
29	Subsection (g) is new. It implements the remedy implicit in section 16(f) when an
30	individual exercises the right to rescind: section 16(a)(5) requires a provider to deliver to the
31	individual, immediately upon formation, a copy of an agreement that complies with Sections 16
32	and 23. If the provider complies with this obligation, the individual has only three days to
33	rescind. Upon rescission, the provider must refund all money paid by the individual. The
34	provider can protect itself against any out-of-pocket loss by keeping any such money until the
35	three-day period has expired, in which event this subsection imposes no loss on the provider. If,
36	however, the provider fails to deliver a proper copy of the agreement, the rescission period is 30
37	days, in which event rescission may very well occur after the provider has disbursed funds to
38	creditors. In this scenario, the remedy in this subsection results in an out-of-pocket loss to the
39	provider. It thus provides an additional incentive for the provider to conform to the requirements
40	of sections 16 and 23.

1 2 3 4 5 6	The Drafting Committee must decide upon the appropriate triggers to start the statute of limitations. Presumably the trigger should not be simply the date of the violation, because if the violation appears in the documents, the statute may have run before the individual completes the plan. Under the Uniform Consumer Sales Practices Act (§ 11), triggers are violation of the Act, last payment by the individual, or termination of proceedings by the administrator. 1 (a) If compliance with a provision of this [act] by a provider located in this state 2 would constitute a violation in another state of a statute that regulates persons providing or offering to provide debt-management services, the provider need not comply with that provision 3 4 of this [act] with respect to its operations in that state. 5 (b) Failure to comply with a provision of this [act] pursuant to subsection (a) is 6 not a violation of this [act] or ground for denial, suspension, or revocation of a license under this 7 [act]. 8 Preliminary Comments 9 10 This section addresses the situation of an agency that is subject to inconsistent requirements in two states. It accommodates only agencies that are physically located in this 11 12 state. A domestic agency must comply with this Act with respect to individuals in this state. It 13 must comply with this Act also with respect to individuals in other states, except to the extent 14 that compliance with the law of those other states would put it in violation of this Act, to which 15 extent it may ignore this Act. This section makes no allowance for agencies located in other 16 states. Those entities must comply with the requirements of this Act even if that puts them in 17 violation of the law of the state in which they are located. The section thus in all cases gives 18 priority to the state in which the affected individuals reside. 19 20 The ABA Advisor to the Committee has observed that this provision does not adequately 21 address the burden imposed on providers by section 3. That section extends this Act to a provider 22 that is located in this state (or organized under the laws of this state) even though it does not 23 provide services to any individual in this state. Section 34 offers relief to this provider only to the extent that compliance with the Act would place the provider in violation of the law of another 24 25 state. If compliance with both is possible, the provider would have to comply with both. The result of this is that, with respect to each requirement that the two states impose, the provider will 26 27 have to comply with the more onerous one. To illustrate, assume this state has a fee cap of $50 28 and a bond requirement of $100,000, and the state in which its customer resides has a fee cap of 29 $75 and a bond requirement of $250,000. Under the operation of section 34, the provider would 30 not get the benefit of the higher fee cap in the other state, since compliance with this Act would 31 not put it in violation of the law of the other state; but it would have to post a bond of $250,000 32 even though this state only requires $100,000. The provider is in the position of determining 33 whether the law of the two states on any given matter is different and then always having to 34 comply with the more burdensome one. To respond to this predicament, subsection (a) could be 35 revised to read: 36

1 2 3 4	If a provider located in this state provides debt-management services to an individual residing in another state and the other state permits and regulates persons providing debt-management services to its residents, the provider need not comply with provisions of this [act] with respect to those individuals.
5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19	This would not relieve the provider of the need to register, and the state would retain its authority (and responsibility) to regulate entities that are located in the state or organized under the laws of the state. The Act would be fully applicable to the extent a provider is serving individuals in a state that bans the business of debt management or a state in which the statutes are silent. But if the other state has a statutory scheme for regulating providers, this language would relieve the provider of having to comply with any part of this Act with respect to the residents of the other state.  A less extreme response would be to exempt a provider from having to comply with the provisions of this Act that are different from the corresponding provisions of the law of the other state. So, for example, if the other state did not address the subject of dealing with affiliates, the provider would still have to comply with the ban in this Act. (The last clause might read, "the provider need not comply with provisions of this [act] that are different from the specific provisions of the law in the other state.")

If the word "consanguinity" remains in the Act, I would contemplate a Comment along the following lines:

Consanguinity is the relation of persons with a common ancestor. Affinity is the relation that results from marriage. To determine if one person is within the third degree of consanguinity or affinity of another, construct a family tree to the extent necessary to show both persons. Starting with either person, the other is within the third degree if it takes no more than three steps, either vertically or horizontally, on the tree to reach that person. It includes parent, grandparent, great-grandparent, sibling, first cousin, aunt, uncle, great-aunt, great-uncle, child, grandchild, great-grandchild, niece, or nephew of an individual, whether related to the individual by the whole or the half blood or adoption.

Page 12: [3] DeletedPCHelp11/1/2004 9:53 AMThis is feasible but would mean either that the later sections that use "affiliate" wouldinstead use "affiliate or relative." Or the definition of "affiliate" would be revised toinclude "relative."

Page 12: [4] DeletedPCHelp11/11/2004 9:58 AMThe Committee will need to consider whether ten percent is the appropriate level ofownership to make one an affiliate and whether the threshold for directors should bestated in terms of a specific dollar amount (and what that amount should be) or in termsof a vague standard such as receipt of "non-trivial amounts of payment."

Page 12: [5] DeletedPCHelp12/22/2004 9:57 AMParagraph (4): The language in the second set of brackets is drawn from the recentlyenacted Virginia statute (§6.1-363.7(5)).

Page 12: [6] DeletedPCHelp11/11/2004 1:26 PMIn the context of this definition, "reduced" interest or fees encompasses the completewaiver or elimination of them. The phrase "through a debt-management-servicesprovider" has been bracketed to raise the question whether it should be deleted: shouldthe Act anticipate a debt-management services industry in which the provider negotiates aplan and the consumer pays the creditors directly? If so, paragraph (7) should also bemodified accordingly. The second bracketed clause is offered as an alternative to the first.It would pull debt settlement plans into the definition of "debt management plan." Thismight simplify the Act by not having to define "debt settlement plans" and in subsequentsections not having to refer to both types of plans.

Page 13: [7] DeletedPCHelp11/11/2004 1:28 PMIf the definition of debt-management plan is revised to delete the phrase "througha debt-management-services provider," the definition of debt-management services needs a debt-management-services provider," the definition of debt-management services needs to be revised, too. For example: "Debt management services" means acting as an intermediary between an

"Debt-management services" means acting as an intermediary between an individual and one or more creditors of the individual for the purpose of obtaining concessions, such as reduction of interest or principal, in the terms of payment. [The term includes debt-settlement services.]"

This definition encompasses debt-settlement agencies, which are separately defined in paragraph 10, whether they receive periodic payments from the individual or instead have the individual establish an account for the accumulation of money to be paid to creditors at the agency's direction. The definition does not encompass a creditor that compromises a claim with its debtor. Although the creditor may receive money from an individual, it is not for the purpose of "distributing" that money to a creditor.

Paragraph (8)(debt-management-services agreement): This definition does not incorporate any requirement of "written" or "record." An oral agreement is within this definition. Requirements of form appear in Sections 14-16.

Page 13: [8] DeletedPCHelp12/22/2004 10:02 AM: The purpose of limiting the definition to persons that provide or offer to provide debt-management services to more than three individuals is to exclude from the scope of thisAct persons who informally assist their friends or relatives by, for example, accessing theindividual's checking account to pay the individual's bills. A person is not subject to theconstraints placed on debt-management-service providers until it has provided or offeredto provide debt-management services to the fourth individual. Thereafter, the person mustcomply with this Act. The definition no longer includes an entity that merely offers toprovide debt-management services; the entity must provide those services to more thanthree individuals. Once an entity is within the definition, however, its advertising andother sales practices are subject to the rules of the Act.

The definition encompasses both a nonresident agency that serves individuals in this state and a resident agency that serves individuals in other states. Under Section 3, however, the Act does not apply to nonresident agencies that serve only nonresident individuals, even if their method of solicitation (e.g., via the Internet) reaches individuals in this state.

Page 13: [9] DeletedPCHelp11/11/2004 1:36 PM: Some concern was expressed at the November 2003 meeting that the definition mightencompass traditional counseling agencies, which deal with credit card debt in whichaccrued and unpaid finance charge becomes part of the debt. For the most part, theconcessions offered by card issuers are prospective, so that the items as to which theissuers make concessions never become part of the principal of the debt. If a creditor'sconcessions consist of a waiver of accrued finance charge or delinquency charges, thatshould not be viewed as waiver of any part of the principal of the debt for purposes of thedefinitions in the Act.

As a further precaution, the definition also uses the number of payments to the creditor as a criterion. The current practice of debt-settlement agencies is to make one payment to the creditor in full satisfaction of the debt. The number in the definition, however, whould be set at a level to prevent agencies from making a slight change in their model in order to avoid being categorized as debt-settlement-services provider. Is four the optimal number? One possibility is to delete the bracketed phrase altogether. This has the advantage of accommodating a change in the model adopted by debt-settlement-services providers. It has the disadvantage, however, of allowing a debt-management-services provider that is not also a debt-settlement-services provider to bring itself within the definition of debt-settlement-services provider merely by negotiating the reduction of principal with one creditor.

Preliminary Comments

There are at least three models for a registration requirement: (a) registration based on bare-bones information; (b) registration based on detailed information, with or without the power of the state to deny registration; (c) licensing based upon an examination of the applicant. Each of these models may be found in existing legislation governing debt-management-services providers. The Athlete's Agents Act, suggested as a model at the November 2003 meeting, follows the second approach. At the March 2004 meeting, the Drafting Committee concurred.

Page 24: [11] DeletedPCHelp12/22/2004 11:33 AMhave been deleted in an effort to reduce the length of the application. Does the DraftingCommittee concur?Committee concur Former paragraph (8) (disclosure of states that have taken enforcement action against the applicant) has been incorporated into new paragraph (7).

Paragraph (5) (formerly paragraph (9)): This draft reverts to require disclosure of the success/failure rate during the scheduled life of a plan or during a portion of the plan. Industry participants explained that after a certain point in the life of a typical plan, it is common for individuals to self-administer their plans. The purpose of a disclosure requirement concerning the success/failure rate of a counseling agency is to provide some indication of the extent to which an agency is channeling into DMP's individuals for whom there is no realistic hope of success. A second purpose is to provide a basis for comparing one provider with another. The prior draft required the applicant to disclose the extent to which an agency's debt-management plans actually are enabling individuals to reduce their debt, as follows:

with respect to each of the second through fifth calendar years immediately preceding the year of the application:

(A) for all individuals who entered debt-management plans and made at least one payment to the applicant that year, the aggregate debt in those plans;

(B) the aggregate distribution to creditors of those individuals from the aggregate payments made by those individuals since the inception of their plans; and

(C) the ratio of the number in subparagraph (B) to the number in subparagraph (A);

Some agencies enroll individuals in plans only when the agency receives the individual's first payment. Others establish the plan in advance of the first payment. To provide similar treatment to the agencies without regard to which of these models they follow, the calculations required by this alternative focus on plans in which the individual makes a payment. But the phrase "at least one payment" in subparagraph (A) includes a set-up or other fee, as well as a payment of money that is to be distributed to creditors.

Some individuals may enter a plan in December of one year and make their first payment in January of the following year. In making the calculation required by this alternative, the agency may treat the plan and the payment as occurring in the same year and may select either of the two years (but not both) for that purpose. If the individual enrolls in a plan but never makes any payment to the agency, the agency should exclude that individual's debt from its calculations.

The Committee must decide whether to require disclosure of these statistics, disclosure of the success/failure rate, or neither.

Paragraph (7) (former paragraph (11)) has been bracked for possible deletion: of what use is this information to the administrator?

Page 24: [12] DeletedPCHelp12/22/2004 11:34 AM): There are two problems with the former version of this requirement. First, an applicantmay not have been in business for two years. Second, the applicant may not be in thepractice of obtaining audits of its financial statements. Does the draft address thesesituations appropriately?

Page 24: [13] DeletedPCHelp12/22/2004 11:38 AMParagraph (9) (former paragraph (15)): At the March 2004 meeting the DraftingCommittee tentatively decided to abandon any requirement that a debt-management-services provider be accredited. Hence this paragraph merely requires the agency toinform the administrator whether it is accredited. This information may assist theadministrator in determining whether further investigation is warranted. If this decision isreversed, and it should be, paragraphs (9) and (10) can be combined.

An agency located in this state, however, may use different forms for individuals who reside in other states. This subsection requires the agency to file a copy of each with its application. Subsection (e): Using the numbers in brackets, the $40 limit would apply if either the number if creditors exceeds five or the monthly payment exceeds $666.

Some states cap the fees at a percentage of the monthly payment by the individual without regard to the number of creditors. (15% is common in statutes regulating debt pro-raters, the forbears of debt-settlement service providers.) Others, e.g., California, use a combination of a percentage and a fixed cap. Washington prohibits imposition of a fee with respect to payments to utility companies or landlords. In Michigan, Nebraska, and Washington, the limit on the set-up fee is $25. The trade associations limit their member agencies to $75. See the Reporter's Note to subsection (g). The ISO standard for accreditation caps the set-up fee at $75 and the monthly fee at $50.

Providers of debt-settlement services typically charge a percentage of the forgiven debt, as much as 25% or more, in addition to large front-end fees and perhaps monthly charges. The cap imposed by this section is much lower, but does not apply to those entities. Subsection (g) establishes the cap for debt-settlement-services providers.

Subsections (f)-(g): Subsection (c) permits the debt-settlement-services provider to receive the set-up fee. Subsection (d) does not authorize a debt-settlement-services provider to charge a monthly fee, so the ban of subsection (a) applies. So under subsections (a)-(d), a debt-settlement-services provider may charge the set-up fee but not any monthly fee. Subsection (f) makes this ban on monthly fees clear. Subsection (g) permits compensation of up to [$600] (or [15% of $4000] of debt forgiveness) at the time the individual's debt to a creditor is settled, and subsection (d) requires that the amount of any set-up fee and any fee for education or counseling be credited against this compensation. The 15%/$600 cap applies to each debt that is settled. The Drafting Committee has not yet considered whether this approach and these limits are appropriate and has not yet considered whether debt-settlement-services providers should be subject to the same caps as other debt-management-services providers.

	Preliminary Comments

Most states that regulate credit counseling agencies have a list of prohibited practices. The prohibited practices have several discrete purposes:

(1) to implement the policy that a debt-management-services provider should assist the individual in dealing with his or her creditors but not become a creditor itself or have an adversary relationship with the individual;

(2) to implement the objective of improving, not worsening, the individual's economic situation;

(3) to prevent deception;

(4) to promote the debt-management-services provider's duty of loyalty to the individual; and

(5) to prevent unfairness or abuse.

The section has been reorganized somewhat. At the Annual Meeting a commissioner noted that the prohibitions in subsection (a) would foreclose the specified activities even as to individuals with whom the debt-management-services provider is not providing debt-management services. If a provider is engaging in multiple lines of business, it could not make loans, purchase debts, etc., independently of its debt-management-services business. Therefore, subsection (a) has been rewritten to separate out and relocate to a new subsection those prohibitions from the prohibitions that should apply across the board.

At the November 2003 meeting there was some discussion of whether the Act should state that counseling agencies are fiduciaries. An agency undoubtedly is a fiduciary with respect to management and disbursement of the trust account, even without any express statement to that effect in the Act. The Drafting Committee postponed consideration of whether there should be a broader statement regarding an agency's fiduciary status and, if so, exactly what that status entails. If the Committee decides to include a fiduciary obligation, this section might be an appropriate place to locate it.

Page 72: [21] Deleted 11/12/2004 7:38 AM PCHelp Paragraph (2): At the November 2003 meeting an Observer noted that at least one creditor engages in a practice that might, depending on the annual percentage rate and the amount of the monthly payment, result in negative amortization. This creditor, however, forgives or refunds the accrued finance charge if the individual completes the debtmanagement plan. Apparently, this is true even if the individual ends his or her relationship with the counseling agency and self-administers the plan. If the individual does not self-administer it to completion, the negative amortization remains. Given the high rate of non-completion of plans, the Drafting Committee may wish to consider whether it is appropriate to encourage this creditor's practices by allowing plans to include debts that involve negative amortization. The Virginia statute deals with this general problem by prohibiting a plan that, at the conclusion of the plan, would result in negative amortization. This approach would not prohibit the practice of the creditor in question.

Paragraph (3): This paragraph prohibits false or misleading representations whether or not the provider knows of the deception. In accord with existing UDAP statutes, the risk of falsity or deception is on the person that makes an express statement. On the other hand, the paragraph prohibits omissions only if the omitted facts are material and are known to the provider.

Alternate articulations found in some statutes include: "employ any scheme, device, or artifice to defraud" and "engage in any act, practice, or course of business that would operate as a fraud or deceit upon any person."

In lieu of the suggestion in the Legislative Note above, the Act could omit paragraph 3 altogether and provide specifically for amendment of the UDAP statute.

Paragraph (5) has been revised because some providers, viz., attorneys, perform legal services. Ultimately, this paragraph needs to be coordinated with the decision under § 4 concerning the scope of the exemption for licensed attorneys.

Page 72: [22] DeletedPCHelp11/12/2004 7:42 AMThe Committee may wish to consider whether there should be any prohibition on aprovider's payment of referral fees. The rationale for the prohibition is to minimize theprovider's costs of doing business, which ultimately are passed on to its customers. Onthe other side is an argument that p

Page 72: [23] DeletedPCHelp11/12/2004 7:47 AMThe November 2003 draft prohibited the agency from receiving "any cash, fee, gift,bonus, premium, reward, or other compensation from a person other than the individualor person on the individual's behalf in connection with the debt-management-servicesprovider's business of providing debt-management services." The former version wenttoo far, in that it would bar a counseling agency from receiving "fair-share" money from creditors. Additionally, it would not achieve its objective because it applies "in connection with the ... business of providing debt-management services," but "debt-management services" is defined to mean receiving money from the individual and distributing it to creditors. Thus the prior version might permit the agency to receive referral fees with respect to individuals who do not sign up for a debt-management plan. The current version avoids these problems. The purpose of paragraph (7)

Page 76: [24] DeletedPCHelp12/22/2004 4:53 PMDoes the Committee wish to pursue this subsection further? As an alternative, the Actcould direct the administrator to provide public education, funded by fees imposed onlicensed providers. For example: "A provider that spends more money on advertisingthan on public education shall pay a fee in an amount determined by the administrator.The administrator shall use the fee to provide public education concerning personalfinance and shall set the fee to offset the cost of this education." Or section 26 (Powers ofAdministrator) could be revised to mandate or permit the administrator to provide publiceducation (and to set the fees to offset the cost). Would the Committee like to pursue thisfurther?

Page 76: [25] DeletedPCHelp12/30/2004 8:45 AMDuties of Creditors:The credit counseling industry is largely a creation of thecredit card industry.The expansion of credit card debt in the last two decades is at leastpartially a result of the promotional activities of those credit card issuers.Arguably, at theleast, creditors have responsibility for dealing with the problems in the counselingindustry that led to the creation of this reform effort.creditors of the benefits the agencies provide them.But the Drafting Committee maywish to consider whether it is appropriate to impose some obligations on the creditors,too.

Caveat: Credit card issuers that are regulated by the federal banking authorities may not be subject to these restrictions by virtue of the preemption of state law. Nevertheless, it may still be appropriate for the state to assert its view of the proper public policy with respect to these matters. It might even influence the rules adopted by the federal regulators.

To stimulate discussion of the propriety of imposing obligations on credit card issuers, the following suggestion illustrates several obligations for the Drafting

Committee to consider:

SECTION __. DUTIES OF CREDITORS.

(a)(1) For purposes of this section only, "individual" means an individual who resides in this state;

(2) For purposes of this section only, "creditor" means a creditor that extends credit to individuals pursuant to an "open end credit plan," as defined in the Federal Truth-in-Lending Act §103(a)(i), 15 U.S.C. § 1602(a)(i); and

(3) For purposes of subsections (c), (d), (e), and (f) only, "debt-management-services provider" means a debt-management-services provider that is registered in this state.

(b) A creditor may not accept a proposed debtmanagement plan from a debt-management-services provider unless the debt-management-services provider is registered under Section 5.

(c) A creditor that receives a proposal for a debtmanagement services plan on behalf of an individual from a debtmanagement-services provider shall respond to that proposal within 30 days of receiving it.

(d) A creditor that receives payment on an individual's behalf from a debt-management-services provider shall permit the [individual/provider] to alter the date of the month on which payment is due.

(e) A creditor may not increase the cost of credit or make other changes in terms adverse to the individual, in whole or in part because the individual has entered a debt-management plan with a debtmanagement-services provider.

(f) A creditor that receives money on behalf of individuals from debt-management-services providers other than debt-settlementservices providers shall compensate those debt-management-services providers. The creditor may allocate the payments among those providers in whatever way it elects, so long as the aggregate payments to all those providers is at least [ten] percent of the aggregate amounts received from them.

(g) A creditor may not, directly or indirectly, impose a fee, commission, or other charge on a debt-management-services provider for referring individuals to the provider.

(h) A creditor that receives more than [one million] dollars in a calendar year from debt-management-services providers shall, pursuant to a rule promulgated by the administrator, pay the administrator [$10,000] to support the administration of this [act].

Reporter's Note: The reference in subsection (a)(2) is to "open end credit plan" because the Truth-in-Lending Act uses that term. The FRB's implementing regulation, known as Regulation Z, defines and uses the term "open-end credit." In interpreting the definition in this section, the intent is that the courts will interpret "open-end credit plan" in accordance with the interpretation given the term by Regulation Z, the Board's Official Commentary, and judicial decisions.

The Reporter's Note to  $$ 23(a)(\underline{12})$  raises the issue whether agencies should be permitted to pay for screening services. Subsection (g) presumes that the answer is "no," and complements that section by barring the creditor from charging for screening services.
