UNIFORM COMMUNITY PROPERTY DISPOSITION AT DEATH ACT

Prefatory Note

The Uniform Disposition of Community Property Rights at Death Act (UDCPRDA) was approved by the Uniform Law Commission in 1971. The UDCPRDA established a system for non-community property states to address the treatment of community property acquired by spouses before they moved from a community property state to the non-community property state. According to the UDCPRDA, its purpose was “to preserve the rights of each spouse in property which was community property prior to change of domicile, as well as in property substituted therefor where the spouses have not indicated an intention to sever or alter their ‘community’ rights.” Unif. Disp. Comm. Prop. Rights Death Act, Pref. Note, at 3 (1971). As of 2020, sixteen states have enacted the UDCPRDA. Five states enacted the UDCPRDA in the 1970s, shortly after its approval. Or. Rev. Stat. § 112.705; Hawaii Rev. Stat. § 510-21; Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 15-20-101; Ky. Rev. Stat. § 391.210; Mich. Comp. L. Ann. § 557.261. Another eight states enacted the UDCPRDA in the 1980s. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 31C-1; N.Y. Est. Powers & Trusts Law § 6-6.1; Ark. Code. Ann. § 28-12-101; Va. Code § 64.1-197; Alaska Stat. § 13.41.005; Wyo. Stat. § 2-7-720; Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. § 45a-458; Mont. Code Ann. § 72-9-101. One state enacted it in the 1992, (Fla. Stat. Ann. § 732.21), and two states – Utah and Minnesota – enacted the UDCPRDA in 2012 and 2013, respectively. Utah Code § 75-2b-101; Minn. Stat. § 519A.01.

In its original form, the UDCPRDA offered substantial benefits for citizens in non-community property states that adopted the act, namely the recognition and protection of property rights acquired in a community property state in which citizens were formerly domiciled. Today, this is more important than ever, as Americans are more mobile today than ever before. It is estimated that 7.5 million people moved one state to another in 2016. State-to-State Migration Flows: 2016, available at <https://www.census.gov/data/tables/time-series/demo/geographic-mobility/state-to-state-migration.html>. Undoubtedly, a significant subset of that 7.5 million involves Americans moving from one of the nine community property states to one of the forty-one non-community property states. As Americans migrate, the property previously acquired in a community property state “does not lose its character by virtue of a move to a common law state.” In re Marriage of Moore & Ferrie, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 (Court of Appeal, First District, Division 2, 1993); In re Kessler, 203 N.E.2d 221 (Ohio 1964); Commonwealth v. Terjen, 90 S.E.2d 801 (Va. 1956). As some commentators have noted, “once [property] rights are fixed, they cannot be constitutionally changed during the lifetime of the owner merely by moving the personalty across one or more state lines, regardless of whether there is or is not a change of domiciles.” William Q. De Funiak, Conflict of Laws in the Community Property Field, 7 ARIZ. L. REV. 50, 51 (1966). The Prefatory Note to the UDCPRDA observes that this is both a matter of policy “and probably a matter of constitutional law.” Unif. Disp. Comm. Prop. Rights Death Act, Pref. Note (1971).

Under traditional conflicts-of-law principles, the result is the same: a move from a community property state to a non-community property one does not change the nature of the property. Sarah N. Welling, The Uniform Disposition of Community Property at Death Act, 65 KY. L. J. 541, 545 (1977). The Restatement (Second) of Conflicts counsels that “[a] marital

1 property interest in a chattel, or right embodied in a document, which has been acquired by either 2 or both of the spouses, is not affected by the mere removal of the chattel or document to a second 3 state, whether or not this removal is accompanied by a change of domicile to the other state on 4 the part of one or both of the spouses.” RESTATEMENT (SECOND) OF CONFLICTS OF LAW § 259 5 (1971). Nevertheless, the law in non-community property states on this matter is often unclear.
6 The UDCRPDA provided a relatively simple solution that served to clarify an otherwise murky 7 area of law.

8 Since its original promulgation in 1971, however, many changes in the law of marital 9 property and in estate planning practice have occurred. The rise of the popularity of non-probate 10 transfers and the recognition of same-sex marriage throughout the United State are just some of 11 the significant changes in the law that could not have been foreseen or accounted for in the 12 original UDCPRDA. Consequently, an update of the act is needed to accommodate these 13 changes and others, as well as to reexamine some underlying policy choices made in the original 14 act some fifty year ago.

15 This Uniform Community Property Disposition at Death Act (UCPDDA) revises and 16 updates UDCPRDA. Like its predecessor, the UCPDDA preserves the community property 17 character of property acquired by spouses while domiciled in a community property jurisdiction, 18 even after their move to a non-community property state. Unlike its predecessor, however, the 19 UCPDDA broadens the applicability of the act, insofar as it preserves some rights that spouses 20 would have had in the community property jurisdiction for certain bad faith acts or acts of 21 mismanagement of community property by a spouse, whereas the UDCPRDA “only define[d] 22 the dispositive rights, at death, of a married person as to his interests at death in property” subject 23 to the act.

24 Section 3 sets forth the applicability of the UCPDDA and the property to which it applies, 25 namely, only the property acquired by spouses while domiciled in a community property 26 jurisdiction, as well as any rents, profits, issues, or traceable mutations of that property. Once 27 spouses move to a non-community property state, their newly acquired marital property is 28 governed by the law in that state.

29 Section 4 makes clear that if the spouses have partitioned their community property, the 30 UCPDDA no longer applies to that property, as the spouses themselves have ended the 31 community property classification of the property and mutually allocated to each other separate 32 property interests that were previously held as community.

33 Section 5 assists courts and the parties in evidentiary matters of proof in applying the 34 UCPDDA. Specifically, even if two spouses are married under a community regime in a 35 community property state, they may still acquire separate property that is owned individually and 36 is not part of their community regime. Community property states generally impose a 37 presumption that all property acquired by either spouse during the existence of their community 38 is presumed to be community, unless a spouse can demonstrate to the contrary. Section 5 adopts 39 the same type of rebuttable presumption, such that a party asserting the applicability of this act 40 would need to prove only that the property was acquired while domiciled in a community 41 property jurisdiction under a community property regime and not that the property was acquired

1 while domiciled in a community property jurisdiction and that the relevant property was not 2 acquired separately. It was thought that any other rule might make proof of application of the act 3 too difficult, given the passage of time, the absence of records, and the fading of memories 4 between the time when the property was originally acquired and the time of death of the 5 decedent.

6 Section 6 is the heart of the act. It provides that upon the death of one spouse, half the 7 property to which this act applies belongs to the decedent and the other half to the surviving 8 spouse. This is the same result that would be achieved at the death of one spouse in a 9 community property jurisdiction.

10 Section 7 is new and has no analogue in the UDCPRDA. It expands the applicability of 11 this act to allow a court to adjudicate claims for certain bad faith actions by one spouse that 12 might impair the rights of the other spouse with respect to property to which this act applies.
13 One such example could be the unauthorized alienation of property to the prejudice of the other 14 spouse. This section allows for a damage or equitable claim to be brought at the death of one 15 spouse by the other or by his personal representative, provided a spouse's interest in property 16 was prejudiced by the actions of the other spouse.

17 Section 8 provides limitations periods within which a party must act to preserve rights 18 under this act.

19 Section 9 protects third persons who have transacted in good faith and for value.
20 Otherwise, third persons could be subject to claims by a spouse under Section 7 if the spouse 21 engages in some acts of bad faith management of community property while alive. Similarly, 22 Section 8 may grant beneficiaries of the decedent or the surviving spouse of the decedent rights 23 against third persons for unauthorized alienations. Section 9 ensures that in most instances, third 24 persons will be protected from these claims.

1 UNIFORM COMMUNITY PROPERTY DISPOSITION AT DEATH ACT

2 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This [act] may be cited as the Uniform Community 3 Property Disposition at Death Act.

4 SECTION 2. DEFINITIONS. In this [act]:

5 (1) “Jurisdiction” means the United States, a state, a foreign country, or a political 6 subdivision of a foreign country.

7 (2) “Partition” means a voluntary division by spouses of property that either was 8 community property or is treated as community property under this [act].

9 (3) “Person” means an individual, estate, business or nonprofit entity, public corporation, 10 government or governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality, or other legal entity.

11 (4) “Personal representative” includes executor, administrator, successor personal 12 representative, special administrator, and persons who perform substantially the same function 13 under the law governing their status.

14 (5) “Property” means anything that may be the subject of ownership, whether real or 15 personal, legal or equitable, or any interest therein.

16 (6) “Spouse” means an individual who is in a marriage or similar marriage or in a 17 domestic or registered partnership relationship under which community property could have 18 been acquired at the time of the relationship and which is recognized as valid ~~in the jurisdiction~~ 19 ~~in which it is entered into and treated as valid under the conflict of laws~~ under conflicts of law 20 principles ~~of~~ in this state.

21 (7) “State” means a state of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the 22 United States Virgin Islands, or any territory or insular possession subject to the jurisdiction of 23 the United States. The term includes a federally recognized Indian tribe.

Reporter's Notes

The amendments to this section include definitions of the terms “Personal representative” and “Property,” both of which are based on definitions found in the UPC and UTC. The amendments also attempt to broadly define the term spouse to include any “relationship under which community property could have been acquired” (e.g., marriage, domestic or registered partnerships, common law marriages, and putative spouses), provided such a relationship is recognized as valid under conflicts of law principles in the enacting states. See, e.g., Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws § 283 (“A marriage which satisfies the requirements of the state where the marriage was contracted will everywhere be recognized as valid unless it violates the strong public policy of another state which had the most significant relationship to the spouses and the marriage at the time of the marriage.”).

Comment

(1) Jurisdiction. The term “jurisdiction” is included in this act in order to ensure the applicability of this act to individuals who acquired community property in a foreign country. For example, if a couple were married in Cuba, a community property jurisdiction, and acquired stock while domiciled there but sold the stock after moving to Florida, a non-community jurisdiction, the widow of the spouse in whose name the stock was registered would have a one-half interest in the property. See, e.g., Quintana v. Ordone, 195 So. 2d 577 (Dist. Ct. Fla. 3d Cir. 1967).

(2) Partition. The term “partition” is defined to mean a severance or division by spouses of property that was community property or treated as community property. A partition may occur while the parties are domiciled in a community property state or after they move to a non-community property state. In the latter case, a partition can still occur irrespective of whether the property retains its community property character in the new state or is merely treated as community property for purposes of application of this act.

(3) Person. The definition of “person” is based upon the standard Uniform Law Commission definition.

(4) Spouse. The term “spouse” is defined expansively to include not only married persons, of either sex, but also partners in other arrangements, such as domestic or registered partnerships, under which community property may be acquired. See, e.g., Cal. Fam Code § 297.5 (stating that domestic partners “have the same rights, protections and benefits, and are subject to the same responsibilities, obligations and duties under law, whether derived from statutes, administrative regulations, court rules, government policies, common law, or any other provisions or sources of law, as are granted to and imposed upon spouses”); Nev. Rev. Stat. § 122A.200. The term may also encompass putative spouses and spouses under common law or informal marriages. The putative spouse doctrine is a remedial doctrine recognized in many states that allows a person in good faith to enjoy community property and other civil effects of marriage, despite not being a party to a legally valid marriage. See, e.g., Unif. Marriage & Div. Act § 209. Although few, if any, community property states recognize common law marriage, Texas does recognize “informal marriages” and thus parties to such an arrangement could also be

1 included in the definition of a “spouse” under this act. See, e.g., Tex. Fam. Code § 2.401. In all 2 events, recognition of the validity of the marriage or marriage-like arrangement by this state is 3 dependent upon the treatment of that arrangement as valid under the conflict-of-law principles of 4 this state.

5
6 (5) State. The definition of “state” is based upon the standard Uniform Law Commission 7 definition.

8 9 SECTION 3. ~~SCOPE INCLUDED AND EXCLUDED PROPERTY.~~

10 (a) This [act] applies to the following property of a spouse who formerly was domiciled 11 in a jurisdiction where property could be acquired as community property, ~~irrespective of~~without 12 regard to how the property currently is titled or held:

13 (1) if a decedent was domiciled in this state at the time of death,

14 (A) all or a proportionate part of each item of personal property, wherever 15 located, that was community property under the law of the jurisdiction where the decedent or the 16 surviving spouse of the decedent was domiciled at the time of acquisition;

17 (B) income, rents, or profits, and appreciations or other increases,

18 (i) derived from property described in paragraph (a) ~~(1)-(A); and~~ 19 or (a) (1)(C); or

20 (ii) that were characterized as community property under the law 21 of the jurisdiction where the decedent or the surviving spouse of the decedent was domiciled at 22 the time of its creation or production;

23 (C) property traceable to property described in paragraph (1) (A) and 24 (1)(B);

25 (2) whether or not a decedent was domiciled in this state at the time of death,

26 (A) all or a proportionate part of each item of real property located in this 27 state that was traceable to community property or acquired with community property under the

1 law of the jurisdiction where the decedent or the surviving spouse of the decedent was domiciled 2 at the time of acquisition;

3 (B) income, rents, or profits, and appreciations or other increases, derived 4 from property described in paragraph (2) (A).

5 (b) This [act] does not apply to the following property:

6 (1) property that has been partitioned between spouses;

7 (2) property subject to a waiver of rights granted by this act;

8 (c) [Except for purposes of calculating the augmented estate and elective share rights,]

9 ~~(3)~~ Section 6 of this [act] does not apply to the following property:

10 (1) property, which at the death of the decedent, was held by spouses with a right 11 of survivorship in favor of the surviving spouse; and 12 (24) property held in a form, including a revocable trust, that was paid or was 13 transferred on death of the decedent to the surviving spouse.

14 Reporter's Notes

16 The amendment regarding “income, rents, or profits, and appreciations or other 17 increases” attempts to capture income of property that is traceable to community property by 18 including a new reference to (a)(1)(C) in section (a)(1)(B). In addition, provision (a)(1)(B)(ii) 19 attempts to capture income from separate property in those states where such income is 20 considered community property but not those states where income of separate property is 21 separate. At the same time, it attempts to capture the law in those states that would grant a 22 community property interest in the “appreciations or other increases” in separate property that 23 result from community effort or expenditures of “time, toil, or talent” of a spouse in community.

24
25 The amendment to this section also combines this section with various exclusions from 26 former Section 4 of the act. It excludes certain classes or property from this act, such as property 27 partitioned or property to which rights under this act have been waived because spouses have 28 indicated a desire that the property should no longer be treated as community property. Property 29 held with rights of survivorship or in transfer-on-death forms, however, are excluded only from 30 Section 6 this act, which provides how property subject to this act is disposed of upon death.
31 These classes of property are excluded from Section 6 because the spouses themselves have 32 either expressly or tacitly provided for other mechanisms of disposition at death. Section 7 of 1 this act, however, may still be relevant if less than a one-half interest in the property has been 2 transferred to the surviving spouse at death.

4 Comment

6 This section makes the act applicable to spouses who were formerly domiciled in a 7 community property jurisdiction. The term “jurisdiction” is used, rather than the narrower term 8 “state,” to be clear that this act would apply to a spouse who was domiciled in foreign 9 jurisdictions where community property may be acquired. The term “formerly ... domiciled” is 10 used to indicate that the act will be applicable whenever a spouse was domiciled at any time in 11 the past in a community property jurisdiction, has acquired property there, and has moved to 12 another jurisdiction. Thus, if A and B were married in state X (a community property state) and 13 acquired property there, but then moved to state Y (a non-community property state) prior to 14 moving again to state Z (also a non-community property state) where A eventually dies, state Z 15 should apply this act to the property acquired by A and B in state X.

17 Under subsection (1), the act applies to all personal property that was originally classified 18 as a community property by the state at the time in which it was acquired. The current location 19 of the personal property is not relevant for application of this act. Thus, if A and B were married 20 in state X (a community property state), acquired a car there, and eventually moved to state Z (a 21 non-community property state) where A eventually dies, then the car would be subject to this act, 22 even if the car was left in storage in state Y.

24 Under subsection (2), this act adopts the traditional situs rule for real estate and is made 25 applicable to all real estate located in a state where this act has been adopted, irrespective of 26 whether the party to whom the act applies is domiciled in the enacting state. Thus, if A and B, 27 while domiciled in a state X (a community property state) acquire real estate with community 28 funds in state Y (a non-community property state), but then move to state Z (also a non-29 community property state), where A eventually dies, then this act will apply to the real estate in 30 state Y, assuming state Y has enacted this act. Whether or not state Z has enacted this act will be 31 important in ascertaining how the personal property of A is distributed, but not in the disposition 32 of the real estate, located in state Y.

34 Under both section (1) and (2), this act applies to “all or a proportionate part” of property 35 that was acquired with community property. In other words, when an asset is acquired partly 36 with community property and partly with separate property, at least some portion of the property 37 should be characterized as community property. The issue of apportionment and commingling, 38 however, is a complex one with many state variations applicable to different types of assets.

39 In some community property states, an “inception of title” theory is used, such that the 40 characterization of the property is dependent upon the characterization of the right at the time of 41 acquisition. For example, a house acquired in a credit sale before marriage would remain separate 42 property under an “inception of title” theory even if the vast majority of the payments were made 43 after marriage and with community funds. In this instance, the community would have a claim for 44 reimbursement for the amount of funds expended for the separate property of the acquiring spouse.
45 Section 7 of this act accommodates reimbursement claims, if such a claim would be appropriate

1 under the law of the relevant jurisdiction. In other jurisdictions, a “pro rata” approach is employed, 2 which provides for a combination of community and separate ownership based in proportion to 3 the payments contributed by either the community or the spouses separately. The act 4 accommodates this approach by not requiring an “all or nothing” classification of community 5 property. Rather, the act is applicable when “all or the proportionate part” of property would be 6 community property according to the law of a jurisdiction in which the spouse was formerly 7 domiciled at the time of acquisition.

8 Even among states that employ a “pro rata” approach, there is considerable variation for 9 how the apportionment is made. As the comments in the UDCPRDA stated, “[a]ttempts at 10 defining the various types of situations which could arise and the varying approaches which could 11 be taken, depending upon the state, suggest that the matter simply be left to court decision as to 12 what portion would, under applicable choice of law rules, be treated as community property.” The 13 UCPDDA follows the same approach. Thus, if A acquires $100,000 of life insurance, pays five 14 of the monthly $1000 premiums from funds prior to marriage, pays 10 of the premiums with 15 community property after marrying B, and pays 10 more premiums (before dying) from earnings 16 acquired by B after A and B move to a non-community property state, then some portion of the 17 life insurance policy should be considered community property, if the law of the community 18 property state so treated it. This act leaves discretion to the courts as to how the apportionment is 19 made.

20 Under subsection (1)(B) and (2)(B), income, rents, or profits derived from community 21 property are also subject to this act, as well as appreciations or other increases in community 22 property. This section should be read to include net income, rather than gross income, from 23 community property, as well as things produced from community property (i.e., “appreciations 24 and other increases”), even if not technically revenue producing. Thus, if a $500,000 house were 25 purchased completely with community funds and increased in value to $700,000 after spouses 26 moved to a non-community property state, then the entire house, not merely $500,000 in value, 27 is classified as community property. Similarly, crops produced from a community property farm 28 and a foal produced from a horse that is owned as community property are also considered to be 29 community property.

30 31 Subsections (1)(B) and (2)(B) also apply not only to income, rents, and profits from 32 community property produced prior to moving to a non-community property jurisdiction, but 33 also after the move. Indeed, in the former case, such a rule would be unnecessary as all 34 community property states already characterize income, rents, or profits derived from, as well as 35 appreciations or other increases in, community property as community property. The rule in 36 subsections (1)(B) and (2)(B), however, is necessary to be clear that even after spouses move to a 37 non-community property state, the incomes, rents, and profits produced by community property 38 acquired prior to the move are still community property after the move to a non-community 39 property state. Thus, interest produced from a community property savings account is still 40 community property after A and B move from state X (a community property state) to state Z (a 41 non-community property state), irrespective of the location of the account.

42
43 As should be clear, this Section applies not only to property that was community property 44 under the law of the community property state but also to any property that is a traceable to community property. Simply stated, property is “traceable” to community property if the property changes form without changing character. WILLIAM A. REPPY, CYNTHIA A. SAMUEL, AND SALLY BROWN RICHARDSON, COMMUNITY PROPERTY IN THE UNITED STATES 161 (2015) (quoting W. BROCKELBANK, THE COMMUNITY PROPERTY LAW OF IDAHO 134 (1964)). By way of illustration, if after moving from a state X (a community property state) to state Z (a non-community property state), A and B transfer money from a community property bank account opened in state X to a bank in their new domicile, state Z, then the bank account in state Z is subject to this act because it is traceable to community property. Similarly, if A and B are married in state X (a community property state), open a bank account there funded solely with community property and buy a car with that money after moving to state Y (a non-community property state), then the car would still be subject to this act because it is traceable to community property. The same result would obtain even if A and B moved again from state Y to state Z (another non-community property state) and exchanged their prior car for a new one in state Z. The new car would still be subject to this act because it is traceable to the community property originally acquired in state X.

SECTION 4. ~~EXCLUDED PROPERTY; EFFECT OF PARTITION OR WAIVER~~

FORM OF PARTITION OR WAIVER. While domiciled in this state, spouses may partition property subject to this [act] or waive rights granted by this [act] only by a written agreement signed by both spouses.

~~(a) This [act] does not:~~

~~(1) apply to~~

Reporter’s Notes

The amendment attempts to specify the necessary form or procedure for a partition or a waiver of rights under the act once the spouses have moved to the enacting state. The amendment does not attempt to specific the requisite form or procedure for a partition prior to moving to the enacting state, which should be governed by the law of the community property state, rather than this act. A mere~~property that has been partitioned between spouses;~~

~~(2) prevent the partition of property to which this [act] would otherwise apply; or~~

~~(3) affect an agreement waiving rights granted by this [act].~~

~~(b) A unilateral act by a spouse of holding property in a form, including a revocable trust, that has paid or has transferred property on death to a third person is not a partition of the property or an agreement waiving rights granted under this [act]. Holding property to which this [act] applies in a form, including a revocable trust, that has paid or has transferred property on death to the surviving spouse of the decedent is presumed to be a partition of the property or an agreement waiving rights granted under this [act]. The presumption may be rebutted by clear and~~

1 ~~convincing evidence.~~

3 Comment
4

5 If parties have partitioned previously-acquired community property after moving to a 6 non-community property state, this act would not apply to any such property owned by the 7 decedent at death. The term “partition” is defined in Section 2 of this act as “a voluntary 8 severance or division by spouses of property that either was community property or was treated 9 as community property.”

11 The mere taking of title to property that was previously acquired as community property 12 in the form of a transfer-on-death deed, does not operate as a partition or waiver. For example, if 13 after moving from a community property state to a non-community property state, A retitles a 14 community property bank account owned with B into a bank account in A’s name exclusively 15 with a pay-on-death designation to C, the retitling of former community property in the exclusive 16 name of “A, pay-on-death, C” does not constitute a partition, unless it can be shown that B 17 agreed voluntarily to sever B’s interest in the property. For a partition to occur, both spouses 18 must agree to the severance of their community property interests. Whether there was an 19 agreement between the spouses to sever their community interests is a factual matter to be 20 ascertained by the courts.

22 On the other hand, this act presumptively does not apply to property titled in the name of 23 “A, pay on death, B,” even if it can be shown that the property was community property. The 24 designation of a spouse as a beneficiary of the property on the death of the other spouse creates a 25 strong presumption that the spouses agreed to retitle the property and voluntarily sever their 26 community interests.
27

28 SECTION 5. REBUTTABLE PRESUMPTION. Property acquired by a spouse when 29 domiciled in a jurisdiction where property could then be acquired by the spouse as community 30 property is presumed to be community property-, if the spouse has complied with the necessary 31 procedures for acquiring community property. The presumption may be rebutted by a 32 preponderance of the evidence.

33 Reporter’s Notes
34

35 The amendment attempts to accommodate so-called “opt-in” states where spouses can 36 elect community property provided specific affirmative steps are taken to acquire property 37 during marriage as community property.
38

39 Comment
40

41 This section adopts a blanket presumption in favor of treating all property acquired by a

1 spouse while domiciled in a community property jurisdiction as community property, provided, 2 of course, that the laws of the community property state allowed community property to “then be 3 acquired” by that person. In other words, the presumption applies only to those persons who 4 could acquire community property under the laws of the relevant jurisdiction and have complied 5 with the necessary laws to do at the time of acquisition. Consequently, the presumption does 6 not apply to unmarried individuals or to those who have opted out of the community regime even 7 if they acquire property while domiciled in a community property jurisdiction, as those 8 individuals could not then acquire community property in that jurisdiction. Similarly, in 9 jurisdictions that allow for parties to “opt in” to community property, the presumption of this 10 section does not apply unless the parties have, in fact, opted into the community regime, as 11 property could not “then be acquired” as community property absent an election by the parties 12 that their property be treated as community property. See, e.g., Alaska Stat. § 34.77.030(a).

14 Although stated in various ways, the blanket presumption of this section is common in 15 community property jurisdictions. See, e.g., N.M. Stat. Ann. § 40-3-12(A) (“Property acquired 16 during marriage by either husband or wife, or both, is presumed to be community property.”); 17 Wisc. Stat. § 766.31(2) (“All property of spouse is presumed to be marital property.”); Tex. Fam.
18 Code § 3.003(a) (“Property possessed by either spouse during or on dissolution of marriage is 19 presumed to be community property”); La. Civ. Code art. 2340 (“Things in the possession of a 20 spouse during the existence of a regime of community of acquets and gains are presumed to be 21 community, but either spouse may prove they are separate property.”); Cal. Fam. Code § 760; 22 Unif. Marital Prop. Act. § 4(a) (“All property of spouses is marital property except that which is 23 classified otherwise by this Act.”).

24
25 Despite the above presumption, a party may prove that the relevant property was 26 separate, even though acquired during the existence of a community regime, such as by 27 demonstrating that the property was acquired by inheritance. Although different community 28 property states provide different standards for rebutting the relevant presumption of community 29 property, this act adopts a preponderance standard for rebutting the presumption, as have a 30 number of community property states. See, e.g., Marriage of Ettefagh, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3rd 419 31 (Cal. App. 2007); Talbot v. Talbot, 864 So. 2d 590 (La. 2003); Brandt v. Brandt, 427 N.W. 2d 32 126 (Wisc. App. 1988); Sanchez v. Sanchez, 748 P.2d 21 (N.M. App. 1987); But see Tex. Fam.
33 Code § 3.03(b) (“The degree of proof necessary to establish that property is separate property is 34 clear and convincing evidence.”); Reed v. Reed, 44 P.3d 1100 (Idaho 2002) (requiring 35 “reasonable certainty and particularity” to rebut the presumption).

36
37 Unlike the prior version of this act, this act does not impose a presumption against the 38 applicability of this act for property acquired in a non-community property state and held in a 39 form that creates rights of survivorship. Taking title to property in various forms is often a 40 unilateral act that should not by itself serve as a presumption of partition of interests in a 41 community asset. After all, a spouse may move to non-community property state and open a 42 bank account with a pay-on-death designation to a friend or a sibling. Such an account should 43 not be presumed to be excluded from this applicability of this act, as the relevant account may 44 have been funded with community property acquired prior to the move. The ultimate treatment 45 of the relevant account will depend upon whether it can be proved that the money in the account 46 was traceable to community property.

1 SECTION 6. DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY RIGHTS UPON DEATH.

2 (a) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (b), one-half of the property to which this 3 [act] applies belongs to the surviving spouse of the decedent and is not subject to disposition by 4 the decedent at death.

5 (b) If, at death, the decedent purported to dispose of property belonging to the surviving 6 spouse to a third person and disposed of other property to the surviving spouse, the court may 7 require the surviving spouse to elect between retaining the disposition to the surviving spouse or 8 asserting rights under this [act].

9 (c) One-half of the property to which this [act] applies belongs to the decedent and is 10 subject to disposition by the decedent at death.

11 [Option 1 (Traditional Elective Share States): The property that belongs to the 12 decedent is not subject to elective-share rights of the surviving spouse-.]

13 [Option 2 (Augmented Estate Elective Share States): For purposes of calculating 14 the augmented estate and elective share rights, the property under subsection (a) shall be 15 considered property of the surviving spouse and the property under subsection (c) shall 16 be considered property of the decedent. The value of property under subsection (a) shall 17 be used to satisfy the elective share rights of the surviving spouse.]

18 This section does not limit the rights of a surviving spouse to a [homestead, exempt property, or 19 family] allowance.

20 Legislative Note: A state should substitute the state's surviving spouse appropriate statutory 21 allowances in the bracketed language in subsection (c).

22
23 Reporter's Note

24
25 The amendment attempts to accommodate the main varieties of elective share rights 26 granted by states. In some states, a surviving spouses elective share rights are a fractional share 27 (often 1/3) in the decedent's property. In such a case, states should elect Option 1, which precludes further application of elective share rights in the decedent's property under this act. Other states, however, grant elective share rights in some in an "augmented estate," which is frequently composed of all the decedent's property, all the decedent's nonprobate transfers, and all the surviving spouse's property and non-probate transfers to others. In those states, Option 2 should be elected so that the both the property of the decedent and the surviving spouse are considered part of the augmented estate, but then the surviving spouse's portion of the property is credited in satisfaction of his or her elective share rights. See, e.g., UPC 2-209(a)(2).

Comment

Under subsection (a), at the death of one spouse, one-half the property to which this act applies belongs to the surviving spouse. This is universal approach of community property states. As a result, the decedent cannot dispose of the property belonging to the surviving spouse by will or intestate succession. An attempt to do so would be ineffective.

If, however, the decedent disposes of property subject to this act by non-probate transfer in favor of the third person, Section 7, rather than this section, would apply. In other words, this act, like the law in community property states, provides that reimbursement or equitable claims may be available to a surviving spouse when a decedent improperly alienates the interest of a spouse by means of a non-probate transfer. See, e.g., T.L. James & Co. v. Montgomery, 332 So. 2d 834 (La. 1975). If, however, the decedent disposes of property subject to this act by non-probate transfer in favor of the surviving spouse, a partition of that property is presumed under Section 4 of this act.

If the decedent disposes of the surviving spouse's share of property under this act but transfers other property to the surviving spouse, a court may require the surviving spouse to make an equitable election to retain the disposition from the decedent or assert rights under this act.

Under subsection (c), at the death of one spouse, one-half the property to which this act applies belongs to the decedent. Again, this is universal approach of community property states. As a result, the decedent can dispose of that property by any probate or non-probate mechanism. Elective share rights that are common in non-community property states do not apply in community property states, at least not with respect to community property in those states. Consequently, a surviving spouse does not have elective share rights against the decedent's share of the property under this act. Subsection (b), however, does not limit a surviving spouse's claim for other statutory allowances, such as homestead allowances, allowances for exempt property, and family allowances. See, e.g., Unif. Prob. Code §§ 2-402, 2-403, and 2-404.

If the decedent dies intestate, then one-half of the property covered by this act is included in the decedent's intestate estate. Under many scenarios, the intestate law of most states would grant to the surviving spouse a lump sum plus at least one half of the remainder of the decedent's property, which would be in addition to the one-half interest granted to the surviving spouse in property to which this act applies.

By way of illustration of this section, assume A and B were formerly domiciled in state X

(a community property jurisdiction) where all their property was community property, and have subsequently moved to a state Y (a non-community property state). Upon moving to state Y, A and B acquired a home in state Z (also a non-community property jurisdiction), titled solely in B's name but with funds from the proceeds of the sale of the home in state X. A and B also acquired stock while domiciled in state X, but held it in safety deposit boxes located in states U and V (two other non-community property states). A and B also retained a summer house in state X, which they acquired while domiciled there and which was titled solely in B's name. A and B also acquired real property in state Z for investment purposes and held title as tenants by the entireties. Finally, B acquired bonds held in B's name issued by the company that employed B and acquired with earnings from B's job in state Z.

At B's death, the home in state Z and the stock located in states U and V would be property subject this act, and consequently, B would have the right under this section to dispose of half. The home retained in state X would be community property under the law of state X, but this act applies only to real property located in the adopting state. Because the investment property located in state Z was held as tenants by the entireties, it is strongly presumed that A and B partitioned that property and thus made this act inapplicable to that asset. Finally, the bonds held in B's name would not be subject to this act because they were acquired with property earned and acquired in state Z, a non-community property state.

SECTION 7. OTHER LEGAL AND EQUITABLE REMEDIES AVAILABLE AT

DEATH. With respect to property to which this [act] applies, at the death of the decedent, the surviving spouse of the decedent or the personal representative, heirs, creditors, or nonprobate transferees of the decedent ~~or the surviving spouse may bring an action for legal or equitable relief if the action asserts a right:~~

(1) ~~arises out of an~~ account of:

(A) act of the surviving spouse or decedent during the marriage; or

(B) act of the decedent which takes effect at the death of the decedent; and

(2) that could have been ~~brought asserted~~ under the law of the community property jurisdiction where the decedent or the surviving spouse was formerly domiciled at the time the property was acquired.

Reporter's Note

The amendment to this section changes the prior version of the draft to make clear that this section applies to "rights" rather than "procedural claims." It was also expanded to cover

1 heirs, creditors and nonprobate transferees who may assert rights other than those granted by 2 Section 6 due to nonprobate transfers of the decedent.

4 Comment

6 This section confirms that comparable legal and equitable remedies that would be 7 available to protect a spouse in a community property jurisdiction remain available at death in a 8 non-community property state under this act. Two remedies often provided by community 9 property jurisdictions are claims for reimbursement and monetary claims against a spouse for 10 marital waste, fraud, or bad faith management.

12 Claims for reimbursement are commonly available when community property has been 13 used to satisfy a separate obligation or when separate property has been used to improve 14 community property or vice versa, see, e.g., La. Civ. Code art. 2364, 2366, and 2367; Cal. Fam.
15 Code § 2640. Different community property states calculate the amount of reimbursement 16 differently. See, e.g., Hiatt v. Hiatt, 487 P.2d 1121 (Idaho 1971) (awarding reimbursement based 17 upon the enhanced value of the property even if it exceeds the amount spent); Portillo v.
18 Shappie, 636 P.2d 878 (N.M. 1981) (assessing reimbursement based upon the enhanced value of 19 the improved property even if it exceeds the amount of money expended); La. Civ. Code art.
20 2366 (providing for reimbursement based upon the amount expended); Marriage of Sedlock, 849 21 P.2d 1243 (Wash. App. 1993) (awarding reimbursement based upon the amount spent); Estate of 22 Kobylicki v. Hellstern, 503 N.W.2d 369 (Wis. App. 1993) (assessing reimbursement based upon 23 the greater of the amount spent or the value added). This section grants courts flexibility in 24 assessing the amount of the reimbursement.

26 Different community property states also provide different remedies to a spouse whose 27 community property interest has been unduly impaired by another spouse with authority to 28 manage or alienate community property. In California, for example, a court may award a 29 defrauded spouse a percentage interest or an amount equal to a percentage interest in any asset 30 transferred in breach of a spouse's fiduciary duty. Cal. Fam. Code § 1101. In Texas, the 31 doctrine of "fraud on the community" protects one spouse when the other wrongfully depletes 32 community property through actual or constructive fraud by allowing a court to allocate other 33 property to the defrauded spouse through any legal or equitable remedy necessary, including a 34 money judgment or a constructive trust. See, e.g., Tex. Fam. Code § 7.009; see also Osuna v.
35 Quintana, 993 S.W.2d 201 (Tex. Ct. App. Corpus Christi 1999) ("The breach of a legal or 36 equitable duty which violates the fiduciary relationship existing between spouses is termed 37 'fraud on the community,' a judicially created concept based on the theory of constructive 38 fraud."). In Louisiana, a spouse may be awarded damages when the other spouse acted 39 fraudulently or in bad faith. See La. Civ. Code art. 2354 ("A spouse is liable for any loss or 40 damage caused by fraud or bad faith in the management of the community property."). In 41 addition to damages and equitable relief, some community property states statutorily grant courts 42 authority to add the name of a spouse to a community asset titled solely in the name of the other 43 spouse in order to protect the interest of the previously unnamed spouse. See, e.g., Cal. Fam.
44 Code § 1101 (c); Wisc. Stat. § 766.70(3). This section provides the court with broad authority to 45 grant damages or to craft any other appropriate equitable remedy necessary to protect a spouse.

1 The rights granted by this section are operable at the death of an individual and may not 2 be asserted during the existence of the marriage. This approach is consistent with the law of 3 various community property jurisdictions. See, e.g., La. Civ. Code art. 2358 (“A claim for 4 reimbursement may be asserted only after termination of the community property regime, unless 5 otherwise provided by law.”). But see Uniform Marital Property Act § 13 (allowing claims for 6 breach of the duty of good faith and for an accounting to be brought by spouses during an 7 ongoing marriage). The relief sought under this section may, however, be for actions of a spouse 8 taken either during life or that take effect at death. For instance, during life, a spouse may use 9 community funds to augment a separate property asset. Moreover, a spouse during the marriage 10 may have inappropriately donated property to a third person. Similarly, at the death of the 11 decedent, the decedent may have inappropriately transferred property belonging to the surviving 12 spouse to a third person by non-probate transfer. Although community property states generally 13 enforce such transfers, they correspondingly grant a claim for damages, recovery, or 14 reimbursement to the surviving spouse. Again, this section grants a court broad authority to craft 15 legal or equitable remedies to protect a spouse. Of course, the application of this section must 16 yield when appropriate to federal law. See, e.g., Employment Retirement Security Act, 29 17 U.S.C. Section 1001 et seq.; Boggs v. Boggs, 520 U.S. 833 (1997) (holding that ERISA pre-18 empted state community property law and remedies, even though the relevant ERISA-governed 19 retirement plan was funded with community property).

20
21 Although most instances of application of this section will involve monetary claims 22 against by one spouse against another, this section does preserve other “equitable relief,” which 23 may involve recognition of rights against third persons to whom property has been transferred by 24 one spouse without authorization of the other. Equitable doctrines, such as a “constructive 25 trust,” are common remedies used by courts to protect the interest of a spouse. This section, 26 however, must be read in conjunction with Section 9 of this act, which protects good faith 27 transferees of property from one spouse who give value. Thus, good faith transferees for value 28 will be protected by Section 9 of this act, such that a spouse’s claim for bad faith management 29 would solely be cognizable against the other spouse. If, however, one spouse improperly 30 donates or transfers property to which this act applies to a third person who is not in good faith, 31 equitable relief against a third person may, in the discretion of the court, be available to the 32 spouse whose rights are impaired. After all, improper gifts of community property by one spouse 33 are generally voidable as against a third person in community property jurisdictions. See, e.g., 34 Polk v. Polk, 39 Cal. Rptr. 824 (App. 1964); Wisc. Stat. § 766.70; La. Civ. Code art. 2353; 35 Mezey v. Fioramonti, 65 P.2d 980 (Ariz. App. 2003); Uniform Marital Property Act § 6(b).

36 37 SECTION 8. RIGHTS OF SURVIVING SPOUSE, HEIR, BENEFICIARY, AND 38 CREDITOR.

39 (a) In this section, “record” means information that is inscribed on a tangible medium or 40 that is stored in an electronic or other medium and is retrievable in perceivable form.

41 (b) With respect to property to which this [act] applies, the surviving spouse of the 1 decedent may assert a claim for relief

2 (1) in a probate proceeding by sending a demand in a record to the personal 3 representative of the decedent not later than [six months] after the appointment of the personal 4 representative. If the surviving spouse does not send the demand, the personal representative 5 does not have a duty to apply this [act], or

6 (2) in an action to perfect title to property, in an action asserting a right to a 7 nonprobate asset, or in the absence of a probate proceeding, by commencing a judicial 8 proceeding against the heirs, devisees, or nonprobate transferees of the decedent not later than 9 [three years] after the death of the decedent.

10 (c) With respect to property to which this [act] applies, an heir, a devisee, or a nonprobate 11 transferee of the decedent may assert a claim for relief

12 (1) in a probate proceeding by sending a demand in a record to the personal 13 representative of the decedent not later than [six months] after the appointment of the personal 14 representative, or

15 (2) in an action to perfect title to property, an action asserting a right to a 16 nonprobate asset, or in the absence of a probate proceeding, by commencing a judicial 17 proceeding against the surviving spouse of the decedent not later than [three years] after the 18 death of the decedent.

19 (d) With respect to property to which this [act] applies, the personal representative of the 20 decedent may institute an action to perfect title to property or an action asserting a right to a 21 nonprobate asset by commencing a judicial proceeding against the surviving spouse of the 22 decedent not later than [three years] after the death of the decedent.

23 (e) With respect to property to which this [act] applies, all claims by creditors of the 1 decedent are barred, unless presented within the earlier of the following: 2 [(1) one year after the decedent's death; or 3 (2) for creditors barred by publication, within four months after the date of first 4 publication of notice of the appointment of the personal representative; and for creditors to 5 whom actual notice was given, within the later of 60 days after the mailing or other delivery of 6 notice to a creditor to present his claim or within four months after published notice.]

7 Legislative Note:

8 In Subsection (b) and (c), a state should insert in (b)(1) and (c)(1) the relevant time frame for 9 asserting claims to be asserted in a probate proceeding and in (b)(2) and (c)(2) the relevant time 10 frame for asserting claims to nonprobate assets or for probating wills or challenging revocable 11 trusts.

12 In Subsection (d), a state should insert the relevant time frame for asserting claims to 13 nonprobate assets or for probating wills or challenging revocable trusts.

14 In Subsection (e) of this act, a state should insert or reference its existing non-claim statutes with 15 regard to the time frames for asserting creditor claims.

16
17 Reporter's Notes

18 Subsection (b) provides time frames for a surviving spouse asserting a right under this act 19 either in a probate proceeding (see (b)(1)) or outside the probate process in the case of an action 20 to perfect title to property, nonprobate assets, or no probate proceedings (see (b)(2)).

21
22 Subsection (c) provides time frames for a heirs, creditors, or nonprobate transferees for 23 asserting a right under this act either in a probate proceeding (see (c)(1)) or outside the probate 24 process in the case of an action to perfect title to property, nonprobate assets, or no probate 25 proceedings (see (c)(2)).

26
27 Subsection (d) provides time frames for a personal representative of the decedent to 28 recover nonprobate property or perfect title in probate property after being notified by heirs or 29 devisees that probate property is held by the surviving spouse.

30
31 Subsection (e) is based upon UPC 3-803, regarding the time frames for creditors asserting 32 claims.

33
34 ~~(b) A surviving spouse of the decedent may send a demand in a record to the personal~~ 35 ~~representative of the decedent asserting a right under this [act]. The demand must be sent not~~ 36 ~~later than six months after the appointment of the personal representative. If the surviving spouse~~

1 ~~does not send the demand, the personal representative does not have a duty to apply this [act].~~

2 ~~(c) An heir, beneficiary, or creditor of the decedent may send a demand in a record to the~~ 3 ~~personal representative of the decedent asserting a right under this [act]. The demand must be~~ 4 ~~sent not later than six months after the appointment of the personal representative.~~

5 ~~(d) The following actions asserting a right under this [act] must be brought not later than~~ 6 ~~three years after the death of the decedent:~~

7 ~~(1) an action by the surviving spouse against an heir, beneficiary, or transferee of~~ 8 ~~the decedent; and.~~

9 ~~(2) an action by an heir, beneficiary, or creditor against the surviving spouse.~~

10 Comment

11
12 Subsection (b) of this section allows a surviving spouse to protect rights under this act 13 and provides a statute of limitation for doing so. Namely, a surviving spouse must institute an 14 action against the successors of the decedent within three years of the date of death of the 15 decedent. Although not required, a surviving spouse may also file a written demand with the 16 personal representative of the decedent. Unless the surviving spouse does so within six months 17 of the opening of decedent's estate, the personal representative has no fiduciary duty to 18 investigate or to attempt to ascertain whether this act applies to any property owned by the 19 decedent.

20
21 Subsection (c) of this section allows the personal representative, an heir, or a beneficiary 22 of the decedent to protect rights under this act and provides a statute of limitation for doing so.
23 Namely, an action must be instituted against the surviving spouse within three years of the date of 24 death of the decedent. Although not required, the heirs, beneficiaries or creditors of the decedent 25 may attempt to protect their interests by filing a written demand with the personal representative 26 of the decedent within six months of the opening of decedent's estate. Unlike in subsection (b) of 27 this section, the personal representative of the decedent has an obligation to attempt to ascertain 28 whether the decedent has property rights that should be protected under this act. See, e.g., Unif.
29 Prob. Code §§ 3-703 (general duties) & 3-706 (duty to prepare an inventory).

30
31 The time periods provided in this section are generally borrowed from other areas of law.
32 Specifically, a six-month period is not an uncommon period for a non-claim statute for creditors 33 and the three-year period is adapted from claims challenging revocable trusts and for contesting 34 nonprobated wills. See Unif. Trust Code § 604; Unif. Prob. Code § 3-108.

1 SECTION 9. PROTECTION OF THIRD PERSON.

2 (a) A person is not liable under this [act] to the extent the person, with respect to property 3 to which this act applies:

4 (1) transacts, in good faith and for value:

5 (A) with a spouse; or

6 (B) after the death of the decedent, with a surviving spouse, personal 7 representative, heir, or beneficiary; and 8 (2) does not know that the other party to the transaction is exceeding or 9 improperly exercising the party's authority.

10 (b) Good faith under subsection (a) does not require a person to inquire into the extent of 11 propriety of the exercise of authority by the other party to the transaction.

12 Comment

14 This section is based upon Section 1012 of the Uniform Trust Code. Like the Uniform 15 Trust Code, this section does not define "good faith." It does, however, require that a third 16 person be without knowledge that the other party to the transaction is acting without authority 17 with respect to property to which this act applies. For a definition of knowledge, see Unif. Trust 18 Code § 104. Moreover, this section makes clear that a person dealing with another party is not 19 charged with a duty to inquire as to the extent of the property of the exercise of the purported 20 power or authority of that party. This section, like the Uniform Trust Code, acknowledges that a 21 definition of good faith that is consistent with a state's commercial statutes, such as Section 1-22 201 of the Uniform Commercial Code, would be consistent with the purpose of this section.
23 This section should be read in conjunction with Section 7 of this act, which provides that courts 24 retain the ability at the death of one spouse to grant equitable relief to the other for actions that 25 have impaired rights granted by this act.

26
27 This section protects third persons in two different situations. First, during life, both 28 spouses may engage in a variety of transactions with third parties concerning the property to 29 which this act applies. This section protects third persons who deal with either spouse 30 concerning property to which this act applies, provided the third person gives value, is in good 31 faith, and does not have knowledge that the spouse who is a party to the transaction is improperly 32 exercising authority over property. Although third persons are ordinarily allowed to deal with a 33 spouse who has apparent title concerning a marital asset during the existence of the marriage, no 34 good reason could be found for protecting bad faith third parties with knowledge of the 35 commission of fraud on the rights of the other spouse. For example, if A retitles community

1 property belonging partly to B solely in A's name and sells it to C, C is protected from any claim 2 by A with respect to the property because C gave value and provided C is in good faith and does 3 not know that A improperly transferred property belonging to B. To the extent B has a 4 cognizable claim under Section 7 of this act, it will be solely against A, not C. On the other 5 hand, if A donated a community asset to C, C would not be protected by this section and B's 6 claim under Section 7 of this act could be cognizable against A or C or both.

7
8 Second, this section also applies after the death of a decedent. Section 8 of this act 9 provides relevant time periods within which a surviving spouse may assert rights against a 10 personal representative of the decedent, as well as heirs or transferees of the decedent. Similarly, 11 it also provides relevant time periods within which the heirs, beneficiaries, or creditors of the 12 decedent may assert rights against the surviving spouse or the personal representative of the 13 decedent. This section protects third persons who transact with those relevant parties in 14 possession of apparent title to property, provided the third person gives value, is in good faith, 15 and is without knowledge that the other party to the transaction is improperly exercising 16 authority. For example, if after A's death, A's surviving spouse, B, sells Blackacre, which is 17 titled solely in B's name, to C, C will be protected from liability under this section, even if 18 Blackacre was subject to this act because it was traceable to community property, provided, of 19 course, C was in good faith and without knowledge that B was exceeding his authority.

21 SECTION 10. UNIFORMITY OF APPLICATION AND CONSTRUCTION. In 22 applying and construing this uniform act, consideration must be given to the need to promote 23 uniformity of the law with respect to its subject matter among states that enact it.

24 SECTION 11. RELATION TO ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES IN GLOBAL AND 25 NATIONAL COMMERCE ACT. This [act] modifies, limits, and supersedes the federal 26 Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act, 15 U.S.C. Section 7001, et seq., 27 but does not modify, limit, or supersede Section 101(c) of that act, 15 U.S.C. Section 7001(c) or 28 authorize electronic delivery of any of the notices described in Section 103(b) of that act, 15 29 U.S.C. Section 7003(b).

30 [SECTION 12. REPEAL. The [Uniform Disposition of Community Property Rights at 31 Death Act] is repealed.]

32 Legislative Note: A state should repeal its existing Uniform Disposition of Community* 33 Property Rights at Death Act, or comparable legislation, to be replaced by this act.
34

1 Comment

2 This section repeals the adopting State's present Uniform Disposition of Community 3 Property Rights at Death Act. The effective date of this Section should be the same date selected 4 by the state in Section 12 for the application of this act.

5 SECTION 13. EFFECTIVE DATE. This [act] takes effect... This [act] applies to all 6 judicial proceedings with respect to property to which this act applies commenced on or after 7 [its effective date] regardless of the time of the death of the decedent, unless the court finds 8 application of a particular provision of this [act] would substantially interfere with the effective 9 conduct of the judicial proceedings or prejudice the rights of the parties, in which case the 10 particular provision of this [act] does not apply and the superseded law applies.
