UNIFORM DISCLAIMER OF PROPERTY INTERESTS ACTS (199)

PREFATORY NOTE

This Uniform Act is designed to replace the Uniform Disclaimer of Transfers by Will, Intestacy or Appointment Act, the Uniform Disclaimer of Transfers Under Nontestamentary Instruments Act, and the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act.

A disclaimer is a refusal to accept property. Although under the common law one could disclaim testamentary gifts but not property passing by intestacy, statutory law has long recognized the right to do both. There is a thirty year history of drafting model legislation governing disclaimers.

In 1968, the Real Property, Probate and Trust Law Section of the American Bar Association developed legislation which dealt with disclaimers and which was based on the Model Probate Code (1948). The legislation dealt with disclaimers in testate (where there is a will) and intestate (no will) situations.

In 1969 the original Uniform Probate Code provided for “Renunciation of Succession” which extended the renunciation power to personal representatives of deceased takers six months from the decedent’s death for rejection of present interests and six months from the time of final ascertainment of the taker of an interest for rejection of future interests.

In 1972 the Uniform Law Commissioners (“ULC”) approved two Uniform Acts: the “Uniform Disclaimer of Transfers by Will, Intestacy or Appointment Act” and the “Uniform disclaimer of Transfer Under Nontestamentary Instruments Act.” In 1975 technical amendments were made.

In 1978, following federal activity limiting disclaimers recognized for federal tax purposes, ULC revisited disclaimers and produced three Uniform Acts entitled: “Uniform Disclaimer of Transfers by Will, Intestacy or Appointment Act”, “Uniform Disclaimer of Transfer Under Nontestamentary Instruments Act” and “Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act.” The Uniform Probate Code deals with disclaimers of both testamentary and nontestamentary transfers in § 2-801, last revised in 1993.

Today, all States have some sort of disclaimer legislation, usually based on the Uniform Acts, sometimes on the more recent UPC § 2-801.

1 The use of disclaimers was transformed by the enactment in 1976 of IRC 2 § 2518 setting forth for the first time detailed rules governing disclaimers that would 3 be recognized for tax purposes. Disclaimers conforming to the requirements of 4 § 2518 are not treated as transfers for tax purposes. The classic example follows:

5 Example 1: Mother's will leaves her estate to her descendants by 6 representation who survive her. She is survived by Son and Daughter and their 7 children. Son decides that he does not need his share of Mother's estate and 8 would prefer to see it pass to his children. If he accepts his share of Mother's 9 estate and then gives it to his children, however, he will incur gift tax. If he 10 makes a tax qualified disclaimer, the property will pass according to whatever 11 state law applies. That law usually defers to any provision in Mother's will 12 governing disclaimed interests, and if none, states that the property passes as if 13 Son had predeceased Mother. In the latter case, treating Son as predeceasing 14 Mother means that his children take. Since their father is deemed to be dead, 15 they take as Mother's living descendants.

16 Section 2518 requires that a tax qualified disclaimer be made within nine 17 months of the transfer creating the interest disclaimed, in this case, Mother's death.
18 The statute applies the nine month period to any interest, no matter how contingent.

19 Example 2: W's will creates a QTIP marital deduction trust for H which on 20 his death is to be distributed to their descendants by representation who survive 21 H. If Son wishes to disclaim his share of the trust remainder, which he will 22 receive only if he survives H, and not face transfer tax consequences, he must do 23 so withing nine months of H's death.

24 The current Uniform Acts and statutes modeled on them as well as UPC 25 § 2-801 do adopt a nine month limitation, but in Example 2 the period would begin 26 to run from the time of H's death, the time when the remainder finally comes into 27 possession or enjoyment (is "indefeasibly vested" according to UPC § 2-801). The 28 reason for this difference between tax law and state property law is related to the 29 other principal use to which disclaimers are put: a disclaimant can usually insulate 30 the disclaimed property from his or her creditors. In Example 1, were there an 31 outstanding judgment against Son, his disclaimer would not only put his share of 32 Mother's estate into the hands of his children without any tax consequences to him, 33 but would also keep the property out of the hands of his creditors.

34 This second use of disclaimers is widely recognized, but not without 35 criticism. In some States this technique is limited by statute or decision. This Act 36 takes no position on the question, but leaves to the States the formulation of policy
37 on this matter. (See the Comment to Section 10.)

1 The differing time limitations under federal tax law and state property law
2 have always created problems. Many commentators believe that the use of the nine 3 month period in the Uniform Acts and the UPC may mislead potential disclaimants 4 into the belief that every disclaimer valid for property law purposes is also a tax 5 qualified disclaimer.

6 This Act addresses the problem by removing all time limits on the making of 7 a disclaimer, allowing a person to disclaim unless the disclaimer is barred under 8 Section 10 of the Act. The removal of the time limit comports with the basic 9 rationale of disclaimers. A disclaimer is a refusal to accept. It should be barred only 10 when acceptance has occurred. In addition, the removal of any time limit from the 11 Act emphasizes the existence of separate requirements, set by different law, for tax 12 qualified disclaimers. Finally, the potential for increased use of disclaimers for non-13 tax purposes which the removal of the time limit creates may lead the States to take 14 considered action on the question of disclaimers and creditors.

15 While this Act separates tax qualified and other disclaimers more clearly than 16 ever, it also has numerous new provisions designed to clarify the property law rules 17 applying to disclaimers commonly made for tax purposes. The Act creates explicit 18 rules for the disclaimer of jointly held property, powers of appointment, property 19 received through the exercise of powers of appointment, and for disclaimer of 20 powers by all fiduciaries and of property by trustees. The Comments to the 21 respective sections illustrate the uses of such disclaimers. Especially significant is 22 Section 5 governing disclaimers of interests in jointly held property. Recently 23 amended Regulations under IRC § 2518 greatly expand the possibilities for 24 disclaimers relating to jointly held property. This Act clarifies the property rules 25 relating to such disclaimers in order to facilitate their use. Finally, this Act does not 26 in any way override or displace the existing law of fiduciary duty which governs a 27 fiduciary's actions, including the decision to make a disclaimer.

2 PROPERTY INTERESTS ACTS (199__)

3 SECTION 1. DEFINITIONS. In this [Act]:

4 (1) “Beneficiary designation” means an instrument naming a beneficiary of 5 an insurance or annuity policy, of an account with a payable on death designation, of 6 a security registered in beneficiary form or of a pension, profit-sharing, retirement, 7 or similar benefit plan, or other nonprobate transfer at death

8 (2) “Date of distribution” means the date at which an interest is to take 9 effect in possession or enjoyment. The distribution date need not occur at the 10 beginning or end of a calendar day, but can occur at a time during the course of a 11 day.

12 (3) “Descendant” of an individual means all of his or her descendants of all 13 generations, with the relationship of parent and child at each generation being 14 determined by [add reference to statutory law of the jurisdiction if applicable]

15 (4) “Disclaimer” means a refusal to accept an interest in, or power over, 16 property.

17 (5) “Effective date of an instrument” means the date on which it is no long 18 revocable. This definition does not apply to an instrument creating jointly held 19 property.

20 (6) “Fiduciary” includes a personal representative, [conservator, guardian if 21 no conservator has been appointed], trustee of a trust, and agent acting under a 22 power of attorney.

1 (7) “Future interest” means an interest that takes effect in possession or 2 enjoyment at some time after its creation.

3 (8) “Jointly held property” means property held in the name of two or more 4 persons under any circumstance that entitles the last surviving holder to the whole of 5 the property.

6 (9) “Person” means an individual, fiduciary, corporation, business trust, 7 estate, trust, partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, 8 government; governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality; public 9 corporation; or any other legal or commercial entity.

10 (10) “Present interest” means an interest that takes effect in possession or 11 enjoyment at its creation.

12 (11) “Trust” means an express trust, charitable or noncharitable, with 13 additions thereto, wherever and however created, which is used primarily for the 14 donative transfer of property, including a trust created or determined by a statute, 15 judgment or decree under which the trust is to be administered in the manner of an 16 express trust. The term does not include a trust that is used primarily for business, 17 employment, investment, or commercial transactions, such as a business trust, land 18 trust, voting trust, common trust fund, security arrangement, liquidation trust, trust 19 created by a deposit arrangement in a financial institution, trust created for paying 20 debts, dividends, interest, salaries, wages, profits, pensions, or employee benefits of 21 any kind, or any arrangement under which a person is nominee or escrowee for 22 another.

1 Comment

2 Beneficiary designation: taken with slight modification from UPC 3 § 1-201(4).

4 Date of distribution: taken from UPC § 2-707(a)(4)

5 Descendant: taken with slight modification from UPC § 1-201(9).

6 Disclaimer: Prior Uniform Acts provided for a disclaimer of “the right of 7 succession to any property or interest therein” and current UPC § 2-801 refers to 8 “in interest in or with respect to property or an interest therein.” This application is 9 continued by the present language referring to “an interest in . . . property.” The 10 further language referring to “power over property” broadens the permissible scope 11 of disclaimers to include any power over property that gives the powerholder a right 12 to control property, whether it be cast in the form of a power of appointment, a 13 fiduciary’s management power over property, or discretionary power of distribution 14 over income or corpus.

15 Fiduciary: The definition of fiduciary includes an agent acting under a power 16 of attorney. This Act is intended to give every fiduciary the power to disclaim 17 except where specifically prohibited by state law or, in certain circumstances, by the 18 document creating the fiduciary relationship.

19 Jointly held property: The term “joint tenancy” describes a form of 20 concurrent ownership by two or more persons with right of survivorship. This Act 21 uses the broader term, “jointly held property,” rather than “joint tenancy.” in order 22 to include not only a traditional joint tenancy but also other property that is “held,” 23 but may not be “owned,” by two or more persons with a right of survivorship. One 24 form of such property is a joint bank account which, under the laws of many States, 25 is owned by the parties in proportion to their deposits. (See UPC § 6-211(b)) This 26 “holding” concept, as opposed to “owning,” may also be true with with respect to 27 joint brokerage accounts under the law of some States. See Treas. Regs.
28 § 25.2518-2(c)(4).

29 Trust: taken from the January 12, 1998 draft of the Uniform Trust Act, 30 § 1-201(17).

1 SECTION 2. DISCLAIMER; GENERAL PROVISIONS.

2 (a) A person may refuse to accept and thereby disclaim, in whole or in part,
3 an interest in or power over property, including a power of appointment. A 4 disclaimer made under this [Act] is not a transfer or release.

5 (b) A partial disclaimer may be expressed as a fraction, percentage, dollar 6 amount, term of years, limitation of a power, or as any other interest or estate in the 7 property offered for acceptance.

8 (c) A person may disclaim an interest in or power over property 9 notwithstanding a spendthrift provision or similar restriction on transfer or any 10 restriction or limitation on the right to disclaim imposed by the creator of an interest 11 or power, except for a power held in a fiduciary capacity.

12 (d) Notwithstanding subsection (a), a conservator or guardian may disclaim 13 a power over property only with the approval of the court that has jurisdiction over 14 the conservatorship or guardianship.

15 (e) Notwithstanding subsection (c), a creator of an interest or power may 16 provide for the disposition of a disclaimed interest.

17 (f) A disclaimer must be in writing, declare the disclaimer, describe the 18 interest or power disclaimed, be signed by the disclaimant, and be delivered or filed 19 as provided in this [Act].

20 (g) Where delivery of a disclaimer is required by this [Act], it may be 21 accomplished by personal delivery, mailing by first-class mail, or any other method 22 likely to result in its receipt.

Comment

The reference in subsection (a) to a “person” must be read in connection with the definition of person in Section 1(9) that includes “fiduciary,” which in turn is defined to include personal representative, a trustee and an agent under a power of attorney. Under previous Acts, the power to disclaim was given to a “beneficiary,” an appointee under a power of appointment, and the representative of a deceased, incapacitated or protected person. Section 2-801 of the UPC refers to a person or “the representative of a person,” which includes a personal representative of a decedent, a conservator, a guardian, and an agent under a power of attorney. This Act sweeps all these fiduciaries into the definition of “person” and includes trustees and any other entity. The 1978 Uniform Acts added the personal representative of a decedent to the list of those who may disclaim in order to overcome the traditional view that the right to disclaim was a personal one that died with the person entitled to disclaim. The addition of “trustee” in this Act is related to Sections 8 and 9 which explicitly allow fiduciaries to disclaim powers and trustees to disclaim property. In every case, however, the law of fiduciary duty governs a disclaimer by every type of fiduciary. This Act’s recognition of the power to disclaim, therefore, does not mean that a fiduciary may disclaim in every instance in which a disclaimer is authorized under this Act. An agent operating under a power of attorney is governed by the law of agency which includes the specific provisions of the instrument appointing the agent. Because the powers of conservators and guardians are often tailored to the specific situation of the incapacitated person or ward by the court appointing the fiduciary, subsection (d) limits the fiduciary’s ability to disclaim those powers by requiring that the disclaimer be approved by the court that created the guardianship or conservatorship.

The broad wording of subsection (a) means that it does not matter whether the disclaimed interest is vested, either in interest or in possession. For example, Father’s will creates a testamentary trust that is to pay income to his descendants and, after the running of the traditional perpetuities period, is to terminate and be distributed to his descendants by representation living at that time. If there are no descendants at any time the trust is to terminate and be distributed to collateral relatives. At the time of Father’s death, he has many descendants and the possibility of his line dying out and the collateral relatives taking under the trust is extremely remote. Nevertheless, the collateral relatives may disclaim their contingent remainders. In order to make a qualified disclaimer for tax purposes, however, they must disclaim within 9 months of Father’s death.

Subsection (b) specifically allows a partial disclaimer of an interest in property or of a power over property, and gives the disclaimant wide latitude in describing the portion disclaimed. For example, a residuary beneficiary of an estate may disclaim a fraction or percentage of the residue or may disclaim specific property included in the residue (all the shares of X corporation or a specific number

1 of shares). A devisee or donee may disclaim specific acreage or an undivided 2 fraction or carve out a life estate or remainder from a larger interest in real or 3 personal property. (It must be noted, however, that a disclaimer by a devisee or 4 donee that seeks to “carve out” a remainder or life estate is not a “qualified 5 disclaimer” for tax purposes; Treas. Reg. § 25.2518-3(b).) In short, any estate or 6 interest in property that is recognized under the law can be the subject of a 7 disclaimer.

8 Subsection (c) follows the provision of UPC § 2-801 making ineffective any 9 attempt to limit the right to disclaim, whether express or implied, which the creator 10 of an interest or non-fiduciary power seeks to impose. This provision follows from 11 the principle behind all disclaimers: no one can be forced to accept property. The 12 Act, however, extends the application of this principle to fiduciary powers. The 13 Drafting Committee concluded that the creator of a trust or other arrangement 14 creating a fiduciary relationship should be able to prevent a fiduciary accepting 15 office under the arrangement from altering the parameters of the relationship. This 16 subsection therefore does not override restrictions on disclaimers of fiduciary 17 powers.

18 Because the provisions of the Act which govern the passing of disclaimed 19 interests and powers are default provisions, coming into effect only when the 20 relevant instrument is silent, subsection (e) makes it clear that the limitations on the 21 power of the creator of an interest or power to prevent a disclaimer do not prevent 22 the creator from making provision for the disposition of a disclaimed interest. Such 23 provisions are not uncommon. Perhaps their most usual use is in a will which leaves 24 the entire estate to the testator’s surviving spouse with a provision that any part of 25 the estate disclaimed by the spouse passes to a trust for the spouse in which the 26 spouse has no interest or over which the spouse has no power that will require the 27 inclusion of the trust in the spouse’s taxable estate. The spouse can then disclaim 28 just enough to use up the decedent’s amount exempt from federal estate tax by 29 reason of the unified credit.

30 Subsection (f) sets forth the formal requirements for a disclaimer. There is 31 no requirement governing when the disclaimer must be written, and, under this Act, 32 it is permissible to write the disclaimer before the event creating the disclaimed 33 interest.

34 Subsection (g) defines delivery to include personal delivery, first-class mail, 35 and any other method likely to result in receipt. The Drafting Committee chose not 36 to require that a disclaimer be a paper writing and not to foreclose the possibility of 37 delivery by electronic means.

1 SECTION 3. DISCLAIMER OF AN INTEREST ARISING UNDER 2 INTESTACY OR CREATED BY WILL. Except as to a disclaimer governed by 3 Section 5, 6, 7, or 8, the following rules apply to a disclaimer of an interest arising 4 under the law of intestate succession or created by will, including an interest in a 5 testamentary trust:

6 (1) The disclaimer is effective as of the decedent's death.

7 (2) If the interest disclaimed is a present interest, the interest disclaimed
8 passes according to the terms providing for such a contingency in the instrument
9 creating the disclaimed interest. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (4), if 10 the instrument does not contain a provision disposing of the disclaimed interest or if 11 the interest disclaimed arose in an intestate succession, the disclaimed interest passes 12 from the decedent to the disclaimant's descendants by representation who survive 13 the decedent or, if none, as if the disclaimant had died immediately before the 14 decedent.

15 (3) If the interest disclaimed is a future interest, the interest disclaimed
16 passes according to the terms providing for such a contingency in the instrument
17 creating the disclaimed interest. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (4), if 18 the instrument does not contain a provision disposing of the disclaimed interest, the 19 disclaimed future interest passes from the decedent to the disclaimant's descendants 20 by representation who survive the date of distribution, or if none, as if the 21 disclaimant had died [intestate] immediately before the date of distribution.

(4) Except for a future interest held by the disclaimant, a future interest that takes effect in possession or enjoyment when or after the disclaimed interest terminates takes effect in possession or enjoyment: (A) as if the disclaimant had died before the decedent if the disclaimed interest is a present interest; or (B) as if the disclaimant had died before the date of distribution if the disclaimed interest is a future interest.

(5) Subject to paragraph (6), delivery of a disclaimer of an interest arising under the law of intestate succession or created by a will must be made to the personal representative of the decedent's estate or, if no personal representative is then serving, by filing it with the court having jurisdiction to appoint or qualify the personal representative.

(6) Delivery of a disclaimer of an interest in a testamentary trust must be made to the trustee then serving. If no trustee is then serving, delivery must be made to the personal representative of the decedent's estate. If no personal representative is then serving, delivery must be made by filing the disclaimer with the court having jurisdiction to appoint or qualify the trustee.

Comment

Section 3 governs disclaimers of interests arising by intestacy or created by will except if the disclaimer involves joint property or a power of appointment or is made by a taker in default under a power of appointment, or by a fiduciary.

Paragraph (1) continues the provision of Uniform Acts on this subject, but with different wording. Previous Acts have stated that the disclaimer “relates back” to some time before the disclaimed interest was created. The relation back doctrine gives effect to the special nature of the disclaimer as a refusal to accept. Because the disclaimer “relates back,” the disclaimant is regarded as never having had an interest in the disclaimed property. Creditors of the disclaimant, therefore, generally

1 have nothing to attach. A disclaimer by a devisee against whom there is an 2 outstanding judgment will prevent the creditor from reaching the property the 3 debtor would otherwise inherit. This Act continues the effect of the relation back 4 doctrine, not by using the specific words, but by directly stating what the relation 5 back doctrine has been interpreted to mean. Section 2(a) defines a disclaimer as a 6 refusal to accept which is not a transfer or release and paragraph (1) of this section 7 makes the disclaimer effective as of the creation of the interest. In the situation 8 governed by Section 3, the death of the intestate or testator. Nothing in the statute, 9 however, prevents the legislatures or the courts from limiting the effect of the 10 disclaimer as refusal doctrine in specific situations or generally. See the Comments 11 to Section 10 below.

12 Paragraphs (2) and (3) provide rules for the passing of the disclaimed 13 interest. Previous Acts and UPC § 2-801 state that the disclaimant of an interest 14 created by will or intestacy is deemed to have predeceased the decedent and that the 15 disclaimed interest passes accordingly, unless the will provides for the disposition of 16 disclaimed interests. The following example illustrates a straightforward application 17 of this provision:

18 Example 1: Mother dies, leaving a will, the residuary clause of which gives 19 the residue of her estate to her descendants by representation who survive her.
20 She is survived by a daughter who has two children and two grandchildren who 21 are the children of a predeceased son. The surviving child would prefer to have 22 her share of Mother's estate pass to her children. If she disclaims her share of 23 the residue of Mother's estate, her share will pass to her children, just as it 24 would if she had actually predeceased Mother.

25 An ambiguity arises however, where the disclaimer involves a future interest 26 created by will. Under the previous Acts and UPC § 2-801, a disclaimer must be 27 made no later nine months after the event determining that the taker of the property 28 or interest is finally ascertained and the interest is indefeasibly vested. Under this 29 Act, there is no time bar to a disclaimer. The following example illustrates the 30 potential problem:

31 Example 2: Father dies, and his will creates a testamentary trust for Mother 32 who is to receive all the income for life. At her death, the trust is to be 33 distributed to Father and Mother's descendants by representation who survive 34 Mother. At Mother's death, she is survived by Son, two children of Son, 35 Daughter, and one child of daughter. Son decides that he would prefer his share 36 of the trust to pass to his children and disclaims. While the disclaimer is not 37 qualified for tax purposes if it is made more than nine months after Father's 38 death, it is effective to prevent Son from acquiring the property. Under prior 39 Acts and UPC § 2-801, the interest passes as if Son had predeceased Father.

1 The ambiguity arises when Son’s children have been born after Father’s death.
2 It is possible to argue that had Son predeceased Father his children would not 3 have been born and that Daughter is entitled to all of the trust property.

4 In order to resolve the possible ambiguity in Example 2, this section in 5 paragraphs (2) and (3) provides that disposition of the disclaimed interest is 6 determined differently for present and future interests. In both instances, a provision 7 in the will providing for the disposition of disclaimed interests will govern. In the 8 absence of such a provision (or in the case of intestate succession), paragraph (2) 9 provides that a disclaimed present interest passes to the disclaimant’s descendants 10 who survive the creation of the interest, that is, the death of the testator or intestate
11 (Mother, in Example 1), thus preserving the result in Example 1. If there are no 12 descendants, the interest passes as if the disclaimant predeceased the decedent. This 13 provision would apply to the following variation of Example 1.

14 Example 1a: The facts are the same as in Example 1, except that Daughter 15 has no children. A disclaimer by Daughter would result in all of Mother’s 16 property passing to the children of her predeceased son. Since daughter would 17 be deemed to have died before Mother, the grandchildren are Mother’s only 18 surviving descendants.

19 Under paragraph (3), however, a disclaimed future interest passes first to the 20 disclaimant’s descendants who survive the date of distribution of the interest, the 21 date on which the interest comes into possession or enjoyment. In Example 2, 22 therefore, Son’s children take his share of the trust property since they are living at 23 the end of Mother’s life estate when the contingent remainders in Father’s trust 24 come into possession and enjoyment. If there are no surviving descendants of the 25 disclaimant, the disclaimant is deemed to have died immediately before the 26 distribution date.

27 The word “intestate” has been placed in square brackets because not every 28 State has adopted UPC § 2-707. Under that section, the death of any holder of a 29 future interest before the date of distribution will pass the interest to the holder of 30 the future interest’s descendants, and if there are none, the interest passes as part of 31 the estate of the person who created the future interest. Under traditional law, a 32 remainder not contingent on survival to a certain point in time does not require 33 survival to the date of distribution and passes through the remainder person’s estate.
34 A disclaimant who is deemed to predecease will not have a will effective to govern 35 the passing of the interest and the only way under the traditional rule to determine 36 who takes the disclaimed future interest is to deem the disclaimant to have died 37 intestate.

Paragraphs (2) and (3) also resolve a potential ambiguity related to questions of distribution by representation. Under the system of distribution among multi-generational classes used in the Uniform Probate Code §2-709 and similar statutes, division of the property to be distributed begins in the eldest generation in which there are living people. The following example illustrates the potential ambiguity and its solution.

Example 3. Assume the facts of Example 2, except that Daughter has predeceased Mother. Mother is survived, therefore, by the Daughter's child, Son and his two children. Son disclaims and under this Act the trust property is to be distributed as if he predeceased the distribution date, Mother's death. Since the people who will receive the trust property are all grandchildren of Father and Mother, should they each take one-third of the estate, thus allowing Son's disclaimer to increase the share of the trust property going to his family from one-half to two-thirds?

Courts have had little difficulty in answering this question in the negative. They have taken the position that the disclaimer should only allow the passing of what the disclaimant would otherwise have taken. (Welder v. Hitchcock, 617 S.W.2d 294 (Tex.Civ.App. 1981)). This Act mandates the same solution by specifically passing the disclaimed interest (and only the disclaimed interest) to the disclaimant's descendants and requires distribution as if the disclaimant had predeceased the decedent or date of distribution only where there are no descendants of the disclaimant. If there are no descendants of the disclaimant, the disclaimer cannot have any effect on the size of the shares under the system of representation.

Paragraph (4) continues the provision of prior Uniform Acts providing for the acceleration of future interests on the making of the disclaimer and makes the rules of paragraphs (2) and (3) subject to it. The effect is illustrated by the following example.

Example 4: Father's will creates a testamentary trust to pay income to Son for his life, and on his death to pay the remainder to Son's descendants then

1 living, by representation. If Son disclaims his life income interest in the trust, the 2 remainder will immediately become possessory in the son's descendants 3 determined as of Father's death, just as if Son actually had not survived. It is 4 immaterial under the statute that the actual situation at Son's death might be 5 different with different descendants entitled to the remainder.

6 This result is common to all modern disclaimer statutes, and is generally 7 regarded as necessary to provide a clear rule. As such, similar provisions have been 8 rigorously applied (Matter of Gilbert, 156 Misc.2d 379, 592 N.Y.S.2d 224 (1992), 9 Matter of Thomson, 642 N.Y.S.2d 32 (1996)). Because the default rules of 10 paragraphs (2) and (3) are subject to paragraph (4), there can be no argument in 11 Example 4 that the disclaimer results in Son's descendants taking his life income 12 interest.

13 The rule of paragraph (4) does not apply, however, to a future interest held 14 by the disclaimant. The effect of this exception is illustrated by the following 15 example:

16 Example 5: Father's will creates a testamentary trust to pay income to Son 17 for ten years and then to pay the remainder to Son. Son disclaims the income 18 interest. Since the remainder is also held by Son, it is not accelerated and Son 19 must wait until the passing of the entire ten years in order to come into 20 possession of the remainder.

21 Paragraphs (5) and (6) give rules for the delivery of a disclaimer and provide 22 for filing of the disclaimer with the appropriate court when there is no person to 23 whom delivery can be made. Because delivery must be made to the personal 24 representative of the decedent whose death created the disclaimed interest, or to the 25 trustee of a testamentary trust, or filing accomplished with the court having 26 jurisdiction to appoint those persons, delivery of a disclaimer must be made after the 27 death of decedent to whose estate the disclaimer relates. The disclaimer could be 28 written before death, however.

29 SECTION 4. DISCLAIMER OF INTEREST ARISING UNDER 30 INSTRUMENT OTHER THAN WILL. Except as to a disclaimer governed by 31 Section 5, 6, 7, or 8, the following rules apply to a disclaimer of an interest created 32 or transferred by an instrument other than a will, including a beneficiary designation:

33 (1) The disclaimer is effective as of the effective date of the instrument.

1 (2) If the interest disclaimed takes effect in possession or enjoyment as of 2 the effective date of the instrument, the interest disclaimed passes according to the 3 terms providing for such a contingency in the instrument creating the disclaimed
4 interest. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (4), if the instrument does not 5 contain a provision disposing of the disclaimed interest, the disclaimed interest 6 passes from the creator of the instrument to the disclaimant's descendants by 7 representation who survive the effective date of the instrument or, if none, as if the 8 disclaimant had died immediately before the effective date of the instrument.

9 (3) If the interest disclaimed takes effect in possession or enjoyment after 10 the effective date of the instrument, the interest disclaimed passes according to the 11 terms providing for such a contingency in the instrument creating the disclaimed
12 interest. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (4), if the instrument does not 13 contain a provision disposing of the disclaimed interest, the disclaimed interest 14 passes from the creator of the instrument to the disclaimant's descendants by 15 representation who survive the date of distribution or, if none, as if the disclaimant 16 had died [intestate] immediately before the date of distribution.

17 (4) Except for a future interest held by the disclaimant, a future interest that 18 takes effect in possession or enjoyment when or after the disclaimed interest 19 terminates takes effect in possession or enjoyment: (A) as if the disclaimant had died 20 before the effective date of the instrument if the disclaimed interest takes effect in 21 possession or enjoyment as of the effective date of the instrument; or (B) as if the

1 disclaimant had died before the date of distribution if the disclaimed interest takes 2 effect in possession or enjoyment after the effective date of the instrument.

3 (5) Delivery of a disclaimer of an interest created other than by a trust or a 4 beneficiary designation must be made to the transferor of the interest.

5 (6) Delivery of a disclaimer of an interest in a trust must be made to the 6 trustee, or if no trustee is then serving, by filing it with the court having jurisdiction 7 to appoint or qualify the trustee, or, if the disclaimer is made before the effective 8 date of the instrument creating the trust, to the settlor of a revocable trust, or the 9 transferor of the interest.

10 (7) Delivery of a disclaimer of an interest created by a beneficiary 11 designation made before the effective date of the instrument must be made to the 12 transferor. Delivery of a disclaimer of an interest created by a beneficiary 13 designation made after the effective date of the instrument must be made to the 14 person obligated to make payment of the interest.

15 Comment

16 Section 4 adapts the provisions of Section 3 for disclaimers of interests 17 arising under instruments other than wills. The principal difference is the use of the 18 effective date of the instrument as the measuring point for the effect of the 19 disclaimer rather than the inapplicable “death of the decedent.” For example, 20 Mother may create a revocable inter vivos trust as a will substitute. The effective 21 date of the instrument is the date of Mother’s death, at which time she may no 22 longer revoke the trust. Interests that take effect in possession and enjoyment as of 23 the effective date are analogous to present interests created by will. Disclaimer of 24 such interests are effective as of the effective date of the instrument, and the 25 disclaimed interest passes to the disclaimant’s descendants who survive the effective 26 date, and if none, as if the disclaimant had died immediately before the effective 27 date. The following example illustrates this provision:

1 Example 1: Mother creates a revocable lifetime trust. On her death, the 2 trustee is directed to make a distribution of $100,000 to Daughter, and to hold 3 the remainder in trust for Mother's descendants for the maximum period allowed 4 under the jurisdiction's version of the Rule Against Perpetuities. Mother is 5 survived by Daughter, Daughter's children, and Daughter's grandchildren, all of 6 whom are children of Daughter's living children. Shortly after Mother's death, 7 Daughter disclaims the $100,000 outright gift. At the time of the creation of the 8 trust, the $100,000 gift is technically a future interest, vested in the Daughter 9 subject to divestment through the exercise of Mother's power to revoke. At 10 Mother's death, however, the power to revoke can no longer be exercised and 11 the $100,000 takes effect in possession and enjoyment, just as would a bequest 12 of $100,000 in Mother's will. Daughter's disclaimer passes the $100,000 to 13 Daughter's children.

14 Disclaimers of interests that take effect in possession or enjoyment after the 15 effective date of the instrument, which are analogous to future interests created by 16 wills, are effective as of the effective date of the instrument but the interest passes to 17 the disclaimant's descendants by representation who survive the date of distribution, 18 or if none, as if the disclaimant had predeceased the date of distribution. The 19 following example illustrates this provision:

20 Example 2: Father creates a revocable lifetime trust. On his death the trust 21 is to continue; the trustee is to pay the trust income to Daughter, and on her 22 death the trust is to be distributed to her living descendants by representation.
23 Father is survived by Daughter, Granddaughter, Granddaughter's two children, 24 Grandson, and Grandson's two children. Both Granddaughter and Grandson are 25 Daughter's children. Shortly after Father's death, Granddaughter disclaims her 26 interest in the trust remainder. Because the interest is to come into possession 27 or enjoyment after the effective date of the instrument (Father's death), the 28 disclaimed interest will pass to Granddaughter's descendants who survive the 29 date of distribution, which is Daughter's death.

30 In the usual situation, if the disclaimant is the beneficiary of a life insurance 31 contract, the effective date of the instrument would be the insured's death. If the 32 owner of the policy (which is often, but not necessarily, the insured) made an 33 irrevocable beneficiary designation, however, the effective date of the instrument is 34 the date of the making of the irrevocable beneficiary designation. Similarly, the 35 beneficiary of an IRA who disclaims would be treated as predeceasing the death of 36 the creator of the IRA, unless, of course, an irrevocable beneficiary designation is 37 made at any earlier time, which time would be the effective date.

38 Paragraphs (5), (6), and (7) state rules for delivery designed to insure that 39 the disclaimer is delivered to the person or entity who has created the interest

1 disclaimed or who has control of the property an interest in which has been 2 disclaimed. If delivery is required to a trustee and no trustee is serving, the 3 disclaimer must be filed with the appropriate court. There is no requirement as to 4 when the disclaimer must be written.

5 SECTION 5. DISCLAIMER OF SURVIVORSHIP RIGHTS IN

6 JOINTLY HELD PROPERTY. The following rules apply to a disclaimer of an 7 interest in jointly held property:

8 (1) A surviving holder of jointly held property may disclaim any part of the 9 interest which the deceased joint holder would have been entitled to receive on 10 severance before death.

11 (2) A disclaimer of an interest in jointly held property is effective as of the 12 death of the deceased holder of the joint property to whose death the disclaimer 13 relates.

14 (3) If the disclaimant is the only surviving holder or the only surviving 15 holder who has not disclaimed the interest, the disclaimed interest passes as if it 16 were wholly owned by the last to die of the other holders of the joint property. If 17 the disclaimant is not the only surviving holder, the disclaimed interest passes to the 18 other surviving holders of the joint property who have not disclaimed the interest.

19 (4) Delivery of the disclaimer must be made to the person to whom the 20 interest passes under paragraph (3).

21 Comment

22 Section 5 greatly expands on the treatment of disclaimers of joint property in 23 prior Uniform Acts on this subject. Since the previous Uniform Acts were drafted, 24 the law regarding tax qualified disclaimers of joint property interests has been 25 clarified. Courts have repeatedly held that a surviving joint tenant may disclaim that

1 portion of the jointly held property to which the survivor succeeds by operation of 2 law on the death of the other joint tenant so long as the joint tenancy was 3 unilaterally severable during the life of the joint tenants (Kennedy v. Commissioner, 4 804 F.2d 1332 (7th Cir 1986), McDonald v. Commissioner, 853 F.2d 1494 (9th Cir 5 1988), Dancy v. Commissioner, 872 F.2d 84 (4th Cir 1989).) That rationale, 6 however, does not apply to tenancies by the entireties which are severable only on 7 the end of the marriage of the parties to the tenancy. On December 30, 1997 the 8 Service published T.D. 8744 making final proposed amendments of the Regulations
9 under IRC § 2518 to reflect those decisions regarding disclaimers of joint property 10 interests. The amended final Regulations, § 25.2518-2(c)(4)(i), however, are more 11 generous than the judicial precedents, and allow a surviving joint tenant or tenant by 12 the entireties to disclaim that portion of the tenancy to which he or she succeeds 13 upon the death of the first joint tenant (½ where there are two joint tenants) whether 14 or not the tenancy could have been unilaterally severed under local law and 15 regardless of the proportion of consideration furnished by the disclaimant.

16 The various forms of ownership in which “joint property,” as defined in 17 Section 1, can be held include common law joint tenancies and any statutory 18 variation thereof that preserves the right of survivorship. The common law was 19 unsettled whether a surviving joint tenant had any right to renounce his interest in 20 jointly-owned property and if so to what extent. See Casner, Estate Planning, 5th 21 Ed. §10.7. Specifically, if A and B owned real estate or securities as joint tenants
22 with right of survivorship and A died, the problem was whether B might disclaim 23 what was given to him originally upon creation of the estate, or, if not, whether he 24 could nevertheless reject the incremental portion derived through the right of 25 survivorship. There was also a question of whether a joint bank account should be 26 treated differently from jointly-owned securities or real estate for the purpose of 27 disclaimer.

28 The general rule at common law was embodied in the concept of dual 29 ownership expressed by the phrase “per my et per tout”. On the one hand, each 30 tenant was seised “per my” or by the moiety or undivided fractional share which 31 would be all he would receive upon severance. On the other hand, he also initially 32 held “per tout,” or the entire property and the right to enjoy the entire estate.
33 Powell on Real Property, ¶ 617(2). It is possible to argue that a disclaimer of the 34 survivor’s original undivided interest comes too late at the death of the first tenant 35 because an acquiescence in the establishment of the tenancy is in effect an 36 acceptance of the interest which cannot be shed except by transfer. Casner, op. cit., 37 p. 22. But if the survivor was not apprised of the creation of the tenancy and did 38 nothing before the death of the first tenant to show his acquiescence, he should be 39 able to reject both the original and the accretive portions. Casner, op. cit., p. 22.

1 Where the survivor has acquiesced in the establishment of the estate, it can 2 be argued that, even in the absence of a specific statute, the accretive portion 3 derived through survivorship should stand differently from the original interest and 4 that the accretion should be subject to disclaimer for the reason that it is contingent, 5 uncertain and (except as to tenancies by the entirety) defeasible until the death of the 6 first tenant like a legacy under a will or a beneficial designation under an insurance 7 policy. Barring conduct indicative of acceptance, the survivor should be able to 8 reject the interest if the survivor so elects, with like effect.

9 The position taken by this Act follows that taken in previous uniform Acts 10 and UPC Section 2-801 and confers the right of disclaimer upon a surviving joint 11 holder (which includes “joint tenant”) and, consistent with the general bar provisions 12 of Section 10, leaves to the particular circumstances whether he or she may disclaim 13 all of the interest or only the accretive part and the effect of knowledge of the 14 existence of the tenancy or other form of ownership, acceptance of benefits, and the 15 like.

16 Joint bank accounts today are largely, if not always, creatures of statute (e.g.
17 UPC § 6-101 et seq.), with basis in contract rather than the laws of succession. It 18 has been held that a joint bank account may properly be made the subject of a 19 disclaimer, particularly if the survivor was not aware of the existence of the 20 account. Hershey, Ex'r's v. Bowers, 708 Oh.St.2d 4, 218 N.E.2d 455 (Ohio 1966).
21 In many States, the statutes state that a joint account belongs to the joint tenants in 22 proportion to their contributions to the account. For instance, if A and B are joint 23 tenants of an account to which A made all the contributions, A can withdraw the 24 entire amount in the account without B's consent and B can take nothing without 25 A's consent. Therefore, for tax purposes, B could disclaim the entire joint account 26 on the death of A. The IRS has gone so far as to recognize a disclaimer of a 27 survivorship interest in tenancy by the entirety accounts governed by the general rule 28 for joint accounts (TAM 9612002, 9521001 [both applying Pennsylvania law]).
29 While there appears to be no authority on point, it would seem that in the 30 hypothetical just given, A could disclaim nothing on the death of B since B's death 31 does not mean anything passes to A given the law of joint accounts. (In TAM 32 9612002, the ruling states that the spouses each made one-half the contributions to 33 the account; TAM 9521001 says nothing about the source of contributions.) The 34 amended final Regulations, § 25.2518-2(c)(4)(iii) recognize the special rules 35 applicable to joint bank accounts, allow the disclaimer by a survivor of that part of 36 the account contributed by the decedent, bar the disclaimer of that part of the 37 account attributable to the survivor's contributions, and explicitly extends the rule 38 governing joint bank accounts to brokerage and other investment accounts, such as 39 mutual fund accounts, held in joint name.

1 These developments in the tax law of disclaimers are reflected in paragraph 2 (1). The subsection allows a surviving holder of jointly held property to disclaim 3 whatever the deceased joint holder would have received had the joint property
4 arrangement been ended. In the typical situation of two joint tenants, on severance
5 each would receive one-half of the property. On the death of the first to die, 6 therefore, the survivor can disclaim one-half of the property, that part that would 7 have been lost to him or her by a severance during life. A tenancy by the entireties 8 could be severed by divorce with each spouse taking one-half. Therefore the 9 surviving tenant by the entireties can disclaim one-half the entireties property, as is 10 allowed under the amended final Regulations, § 25.2518-2(c)(4)(i).

11 Section 5 also deals with joint property arrangements other than those 12 involving real property, such as joint bank accounts, that belong to the joint holders 13 in proportion to their contributions to the joint property arrangement. A surviving 14 joint holder can disclaim that part of the joint property which the deceased joint 15 holder could have regained on the destruction or severance of the arrangement. For 16 example, if A contributes 60% and B contributes 40% to a joint bank account and 17 they allow the interest on the funds to accumulate, on B's death A can disclaim 40% 18 of the account; on A's death B can disclaim 60% of the account.

19 Paragraph (2) provides that the disclaimer is effective as of the death of the 20 joint holder which triggers the survivorship feature of the joint property 21 arrangement.

22 Paragraph (3) deals with two distinct situations. Where there are two joint 23 holders, a disclaimer by the survivor results in the disclaimed property passing as 24 part of the deceased joint holder's estate. If a married couple owns the family home 25 in joint tenancy, therefore, a disclaimer by the survivor results in one-half the home 26 passing through the decedent's estate. The surviving spouse and whoever receives 27 the interest through the decedent's estate are tenants in common in the house.
28 Without the disclaimer, the interest would automatically qualify for the marital 29 deduction. If the family home accounts for a large portion of the couple's wealth, 30 the first spouse to die might not have enough property not passing to the survivor to 31 fully utilize the exclusion amount created by the unified credit. The following 32 example illustrates this situation:

33 Example 1: H and W own their home as tenants by the entireties. The home 34 is worth $400,000. H dies in 1998, survived by W. H's will leaves his entire 35 estate to H and W's children. H's probate estate is worth $425,000. H's estate
36 includes ½ the value of the house under IRC § 2040(b) and the $200,000
37 qualifies for the marital deduction. If W disclaims the ½ the value of the house 38 as allowed by the newly amended Regulations, H's taxable estate will increase 39 by $200,000 to $625,000 the exclusion amount for 1998 and the unified credit

1 available to H's estate (assuming none of the credit was used during life to offset 2 gift tax) is fully utilized.

3 In a multiple holder joint property arrangement, the subsection provides that 4 the disclaimed interest passes to the surviving holders who have not disclaimed the 5 interest. The following example illustrates this provision:

6 Example 2: A, B, C, and D are joint tenants with right of survivorship in 7 Blackacre. A dies and D disclaims the entire interest coming to D from A. B 8 and C are joint tenants as to 1/4 of the property and B, C, and D are joint 9 tenants as to 3/4 of Blackacre. On C's death, B and D are joint tenants as to 3/4 10 of the property and B is tenant in common with the joint tenancy as to 1/4 of the 11 property. If B dies next, 1/4 of Blackacre passes through his estate and D and 12 whoever takes from B are tenants in common in Blackacre, D with a 3/4 13 undivided interest and B's successor with a 1/4 undivided interest.

14 Paragraph (4) requires that delivery of the disclaimer be made to whomever 15 the disclaimed interest passes under paragraph (3). That person would then be able 16 to use the disclaimer, along with any other necessary documentation, to assert 17 ownership over the disclaimed interest.

18 SECTION 6. DISCLAIMER OF POWERS NOT HELD IN A 19 FIDUCIARY CAPACITY. The following rules apply to disclaimers of powers not 20 held in a fiduciary capacity:

21 (1) If the holder has not exercised the power, a disclaimer with respect to a 22 power created by a will is effective as of the date of the decedent's death, and a 23 disclaimer with respect to a power created by any other instrument is effective as of 24 the effective date of the instrument.

25 (2) If the holder has exercised the power, the disclaimer is effective 26 immediately after the date of the last exercise of the power.

27 (3) The will or other instrument creating the power is construed as if the 28 power ceased to exist as of the effective date of the disclaimer.

(4) Delivery of the disclaimer must be made as provided by Section 3, paragraphs (5) and (6) or Section 4, paragraphs (5), (6) and (7), with those sections to be applied as if the power disclaimed were an interest in property.

Comment

Section 2(a) allows a person to disclaim an interest in or power over property. The latter part of the definition includes a power of appointment. This was not specifically addressed in the prior Uniform Acts. The practical effect of this type of disclaimer is as if the disclaimed power never existed. In addition, it is possible to disclaim a part of a power, for example, the disclaimer could be of a portion of the power to appoint one's self, while retaining the right to appoint to others. Delivery of the disclaimer depends on the whether the power was created by will or by another instrument. In the former case the delivery provisions of Section 3 apply, in the latter, those of Section 4.

SECTION 7. DISCLAIMER BY APPOINTEE, OBJECT OR TAKER IN DEFAULT OF POWER OF APPOINTMENT. The following rules apply to disclaimers by an appointee, an object, or a taker in default of a power of appointment:

(1) A disclaimer by an appointee of a power of appointment is effective: (A) as of the death of the holder of the power if the power is exercised by will; or (B) as of the effective date of the instrument exercising the power if the power is exercised other than by will.

(2) A disclaimer by an object or taker in default under a non-fiduciary power of appointment is effective: (A) as of the date of the death of the creator of the power if the power is created by will; or (B) as of the effective date of the instrument creating the power if the power is created other than by will.

(3) A disclaimer of an interest by an appointee is governed by Section 3, paragraphs (2), (3), and (4) if the disclaimed interest is created by the exercise of the power in a will and by Section 4, paragraphs (2), (3), and (4) if the disclaimed interest is created by the exercise of the power in an instrument other than a will. A disclaimer of a power created in an appointee is governed by Section 6.

(4) A disclaimer of an interest by an object or a taker in default of a power of appointment is governed by Section 3, paragraphs (3) and (4) if the power is created by will and by Section 4, paragraphs (3) and (4) if the power is created by an instrument other than a will.

(5) Delivery of a disclaimer under this section is made in the following manner:

(A) Delivery of a disclaimer by an object or a taker in default of exercise of a power of appointment must be made to the holder of the power or to the fiduciary acting under the instrument that created the power. Delivery of the disclaimer may be made at any time after the creation of the power.

(B) Delivery of a disclaimer by an appointee of a non-fiduciary power of appointment must be made to the personal representative of the holder's estate or to the fiduciary under the instrument that created the power.

(C) If delivery is to be made to a fiduciary and no fiduciary is in office, the disclaimer must be filed with the court having jurisdiction to appoint or qualify the fiduciary.

Comment

1 This section deals with disclaimers by those who may or do receive an 2 interest in property through the exercise or creation of a power of appointment. At 3 the time of the creation of a power of appointment, the creator of the power, besides 4 giving the power to the holder of the power, can limit the objects of the power (the 5 permissible appointees of the property subject to the power) and also name those 6 who are to take if the power is not exercised who are referred to as takers in default.
7 A general power of appointment for transfer tax purposes is one that can be 8 exercised in favor of the holder of the power, the holder's estate, the holder's 9 creditors, or creditors of the holder's estate. The broadest possible special power 10 of appointment is one that can be exercised in favor of anyone except the holder of 11 the power, the holder's estate, the holder's creditors, or creditors of the holder's 12 estate, although many special powers further limit the class of permissible 13 appointees. The holder of a general power is considered to be the owner of the 14 property for transfer tax purposes. The holder of a special power suffers no estate 15 or gift tax consequences. For purposes of making a qualified disclaimer for tax 16 purposes, an appointee or taker in default under a general power may disclaim 17 property subject to the power within 9 months of the exercise or lapse of the power.
18 A permissible taker under a special power, however, must disclaim with 9 months of 19 the creation of the power.

20 Section 7 recognizes the distinction between appointees on one hand and 21 takers in default and objects on the other: paragraph (1) makes a disclaimer by an 22 appointee effective as of the exercise of the power and paragraph (2) makes a 23 disclaimer by an object or taker in default effective as of the creation of the power.

24 An appointee is in the same position as any devisee or beneficiary of a trust.
25 He or she may receive a present or future interest depending on how the donee 26 exercises the power. Paragraph (3), therefore, refers to the appropriate paragraphs 27 of Sections 3 and 4 for rules governing the effect of a disclaimer by an appointee 28 who receives a present or future interest in property. A disclaimer by an appointee 29 who receives a power over property is governed by Section 6.

30 A taker in default or a permissible object of appointment is traditionally 31 regarded as having a type of future interest. See Restatement, Second, Property 32 (Donative Transfers) § 11.2, Comments c and d. The future interest is created by 33 the will or other governing instrument that creates the power of appointment.
34 Paragraph (4), therefore, refers to the appropriate paragraphs of Sections 3 and 4 35 for rules governing the effect of a disclaimer by an object or taker in default.

36 Example 1: H creates a testamentary trust, income to W for life, on W's
37 death the trust property to be distributed among H and W's descendants as W 38 shall appoint by will, and in default of appointment, to H and W's descendants 39 by representation who survive W. This is a special power of appointment and in

1 order for a disclaimer to be qualified for tax purposes, the disclaimer must be 2 made within 9 months of the creation of the power. S, H and W's son, decides 3 that it is unlikely W will exercise the special power and that he would prefer not 4 to take as a taker in default but rather as have his share of the property pass to 5 his descendants. (Were W incompetent and had never written a will exercising 6 the power, it would be certain that the power would not be exercised.) S then 7 disclaims both as a taker in default and as a possible appointee. S has effectively 8 refused any property that might come to him through the non-exercise or 9 exercise of the power. If W does not exercise the power, under paragraph (4), 10 S's interest passes to his descendants living at the time the interest is to come 11 into possession or enjoyment, i.e., the termination of the trust at W's death. If 12 there are no descendants of S living at that time, the interest passes as if S had 13 predeceased W. If W does exercise the power and does appoint some part of 14 the property to S, under paragraph (3), the present interest will pass to his 15 descendants living at that time, and if there are none, the present interest will 16 pass as if S had predeceased W.

17 SECTION 8. DISCLAIMER OF POWERS HELD IN A FIDUCIARY

18 CAPACITY. If a fiduciary disclaims a power held in a fiduciary capacity that has 19 not been exercised, with respect to a power created by a will, the disclaimer relates 20 back to the date of the decedent's death, and with respect to a power created by any 21 other instrument, the disclaimer relates back to the effective date of the instrument.
22 If the fiduciary has previously exercised the power, the disclaimer relates back to the 23 date of its last exercise. Except as otherwise provided by the terms of the 24 disclaimer, a disclaimer of a fiduciary power is effective only as to the fiduciary 25 disclaiming. Delivery of the disclaimer must be made as pursuant to Section 3, 26 paragraphs (5) and (6) or Section 4, paragraphs (5), (6), and (7), with those sections 27 to be applied as if the power disclaimed were an interest in property.

28 Comment

29 It is difficult for a trustee to disclaim powers, whether granted by law or by 30 the governing instrument, or property passing to the trust. Attempts by trustees to 1 make tax qualified disclaimers have been rebuffed by the IRS on the ground that 2 such disclaimers are not allowed by state statute and are ineffective without 3 statutory sanction since they involved a repudiation of the trust. (Rev. Rul. 90-110, 4 1990-2 CB 209, PRLs 8527009, 8549004) On the other hand, a disclaimer by a 5 trust beneficiary is possible. (See PRL 8543009 where a son disclaimed his status as 6 a permissible recipient of discretionary distributions of principal, allowing the trust 7 to qualify for the marital deduction.) The Tax Court agreed in Estate of Bennett v.

8 Commissioner, 100 TC 43 (1993), citing the direct authority of Matter of Witz, 95 9 Misc.2d 36, 406 N.Y.S.2d 671 (Sur.Ct. 1978) in which the Surrogate wrote: “The 10 trustee’s purported disclaimer [of the power to invade principal] annexed to the 11 petition is a nullity. Testator imposed an obligation upon the trustee which the 12 fiduciary could not disclaim without renouncing his right to letters of trusteeship.”
13 (95 Misc.2d at 40, 406 N.Y.S.2d at 673).

14 There is contrary authority, however. In Estate of Ware v. Commissioner, 15 480 F.2d 444 (7th Cir. 1973) the court found that the Illinois Termination of Powers
16 Act was broad enough to allow a trustee to “release” a power to accumulate trust
17 income. In Cleaveland v. U.S., 62 A.F.T.R.2d 88-5992, 88-1 USTC ¶ 13,766
18 (C.D.Ill. 1988) the court held that a disclaimer by a trustee of the power to invade 19 principal of a testamentary trust for the education of the decedent’s children was a 20 valid disclaimer and made the trust eligible for the marital deduction.

21 This Act makes it clear that trustees may disclaim powers. Such powers 22 over property include managerial powers such as powers to make investments or to 23 allocate receipts between principal and income, and beneficial powers to make 24 discretionary distributions of income or principal to beneficiaries. Section 2(c) 25 provides that a fiduciary’s ability to disclaim such powers may be limited by the 26 creator of the fiduciary relationship. In any event, the fiduciary’s decision to 27 disclaim a power must comport with the fiduciary’s duties.

28 The section refers to fiduciary in the singular. It is possible, of course, for a 29 trust to have two or more co-trustees and an estate to have two or more co-personal 30 representatives. This Act leaves the effect of actions of multiple fiduciaries to the 31 general rules in effect in each State relating to multiple fiduciaries by making the 32 disclaimer effective only as to the disclaiming fiduciary unless the disclaimer states 33 otherwise. For example, if the general rule is that a majority of trustees can make 34 binding decisions, a disclaimer by two of three co-trustees of a power that has not 35 been exercised will destroy the power unless the third co-trustee follows whatever 36 procedure state law prescribes for disassociating him or herself from the action of 37 the majority. A sole trustee holding a power to invade principal for a group of 38 beneficiaries including him or herself who wishes to disclaim the power but yet 39 preserve the possibility of another trustee exercising the power could disclaim the

1 power and then seek the appointment of a disinterested co-trustee to exercise the 2 power.

3 The last sentence of the section requires that delivery of the disclaimer be 4 made according to whether the source of the fiduciary's power is a will or another 5 type of instrument.

6 SECTION 9. DISCLAIMER OF INTEREST BY TRUSTEE. If a trustee 7 disclaims an interest in property that would otherwise be included in or added to the 8 trust, and the instrument creating the trust or making the addition to the trust does 9 not provide for another disposition of the disclaimed interest or of disclaimed or 10 failed interests in general, the interest is deemed not to have been included in the 11 disposition or addition to the trust.

12 Comment

13 Section 9 deals with the disclaimer of a right to receive property into a trust, 14 and thus applies only to trustees. (A disclaimer of a right to receive property by a 15 fiduciary acting on behalf of an individual, such as a personal representative, 16 conservator, guardian, or agent is governed by the section of the statute applicable 17 to the type of interest being disclaimed.) The Uniform Disclaimer of Transfers by 18 Will, Intestacy or Appointment Act (1978) permitted disclaimers by "... an heir, 19 next of kin, devisee, legatee, person succeeding to a disclaimed interest, beneficiary 20 under a testamentary instrument, or appointee under a power of appointment." This 21 was an extension of the common law rule which allowed for disclaimer by a devisee
22 or legatee, but not an heir. The 1990 amendments to UPC § 2-801 further extended 23 the right to disclaim to a decedent through his personal representative. In 24 recognizing a disclaimer by a fiduciary, this section conforms to the UPC and 25 extends that rationale to analogous situations. A trustee who disclaims property 26 that would, if accepted into the trust, otherwise belong to a beneficiary is acting in 27 much the same way as a personal representative of a decedent who disclaims for the 28 beneficiaries.

29 The instrument under which the right to receive the property or disclaim the 30 property was created will generally govern the disposition of the property in the 31 event of a disclaimer. When the instrument does not provide for the property in the 32 event of a disclaimer the property passes as if it were never to be included in the 33 trust. The effect of the actions of co-trustees will depend on the state law governing

1 the action of multiple trustees. As with other actions taken by another in a fiduciary 2 capacity, the disclaimer will be subject to the fiduciary's general fiduciary duty.

3 A example of a disclaimer by a trustee can be found in a 1997 decision of the 4 Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court. McClintock v. Scahill, 403 Mass. 397, 530
5 N.E.2d 164 involved a disclaimer by trustees of property pouring over to the trust 6 on the death of one of the grantors. The trustees indicated that the disclaimer of 7 some $415, 000 would decrease the taxes on the decedent's estate by $625,000.
8 The court concluded that the trustee could disclaim. The Massachusetts statute 9 allowed "beneficiaries" to disclaim, a definition which clearly included the trust. The 10 question was, who disclaims on behalf of the trust, the beneficiaries (who 11 presumably were minors and perhaps unborns) or the trustee. The trustee does have 12 legal title to the trust property and acts for the trust in dealing with third parties and 13 also has implied powers necessary to carry out the purpose of the trust in addition to 14 the express powers contained in the trust instrument. Finally, the statutory 15 definition of beneficiary clearly included those who act on the behalf of others, such 16 as an estate or a corporation. Since no claim was made that the trustee's action 17 violated his fiduciary duty, the court found the disclaimer valid and effective.

18 SECTION 10. WHEN DISCLAIMER BARRED OR LIMITED.

19 (a) A disclaimer is barred if any of the following events occur before the 20 disclaimer is filed or delivered:

- 21 (1) acceptance of the property interest or power sought to be disclaimed;
- 22 (2) voluntary assignment, conveyance, encumbrance, pledge, or transfer 23 of the property to which the right to disclaim related or a contract therefor;
- 24 (3) written waiver of the right to disclaim;
- 25 (4) involuntary sale or other involuntary transfer for the account of the 26 disclaimant of the property to which the right to disclaim related.

27 (b) A disclaimer of a power is not barred by its past exercise.

28 (c) A disclaimer is barred or limited as provided by other law.

29 Comment

1 The 1978 Act required that an effective disclaimer be made within 9 months 2 of the event giving rise to the right to disclaim (e.g., 9 months from the death of the 3 decedent or donee of a power or the vesting of a future interest). The 9 month
4 period corresponded in some situations with the Internal Revenue Code provisions
5 governing qualified tax disclaimers. Under the common law an effective disclaimer 6 had to be made only within a “reasonable” time.

7 This Act specifically rejects a time requirement for making a disclaimer.
8 Recognizing that disclaimers are used for purposes other than tax planning, a 9 disclaimer can be made effectively under the Act so long as the disclaimant is not 10 barred from disclaiming the property or interest or has not waived the right to 11 disclaim. Persons seeking to make tax qualified disclaimers will continue to have to 12 conform to the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code.

13 The events resulting in a bar to the right to disclaim set forth in this section 14 are similar to those found in the 1978 Acts and UPC § 2-801. Whether particular 15 activities will be found to constitute an “acceptance” or “receipt of a benefit” as 16 those terms are used in the statutory language will necessarily be determined by the 17 courts based upon the particular facts. (See Leipham v. Adams, 77 Wash.App. 827, 18 894 P.2d 576 (1995) (changing title of jointly held account to name of survivor and 19 use of survivor’s Social Security number on account indicates acceptance); Matter 20 of Will of Hall, 318 S.C. 188, 456 S.E.2d 439 (Ct.App. 1995) (acceptance of deed 21 from estate, execution of receipt and release, procuring insurance on the property, 22 and listing it for sale indicate acceptance and bar disclaimer); Jordan v. Trower, 208 23 Ga.App. 552, 431 S.E.2d 160 (1993) (acceptance of “de minimis” sum from estate 24 before filing of will for probate without more is not acceptance by sole beneficiary 25 of estate); Matter of Gates, 189 A.D.2d 427, 596 N.Y.S.2d 194 (3d Dept. 1993) 26 (minor beneficiary of funds advanced from the estate for his use did not accept and 27 may still disclaim).)

28 The Drafting Committee does not contemplate that a mere failure to object 29 to a gift (for example, additions to an existing trust) would alone constitute 30 acceptance of the gift. The Committee also contemplates that acts not considered as 31 constituting an acceptance under the Treasury Regulations pertaining to tax 32 qualified disclaimers will not amount to acceptance under the Act. For example, 33 Treas. Reg. § 25.2518-2(d)(1) states taking delivery of an instrument of title, 34 “without more” is not an acceptance, nor is a disclaimant “considered to have 35 accepted property merely because under applicable local law title to the property
36 vests immediately in the disclaimant upon the death of a decedent.” In addition, “[i]n 37 the case of residential property, held in joint tenancy by some or all of the residents, 38 a joint tenant will not be considered to have accepted the joint tenancy merely 39 because the tenant resided on the property prior to disclaiming his interest in the 40 property.” Treas. Reg. § 25.2518-2(d)(2) allows a fiduciary who is also a

1 beneficiary to take actions in the exercise of fiduciary powers to perserve or 2 maintian the disclaimed property without such acts constituting an acceptance. For 3 example, a personal representative who pays real estate taxes on real property of 4 which the presonal representative is the devisee is not barred from disclaiming.
5 Finally, Treas. Reg. § 25.2518-2(d)(3) provides that “[a]ny actions taken with 6 regard to an interest in property by a beneficiary or a custodian prior to the 7 beneficiary’s twenty-first birthday will not be an acceptance by the beneficiary of the 8 interest.”

9 Failure to object to a known and vested right over along period of time, 10 however, may create a presumption of acceptance or receipt of a benefit. Proof of 11 an assignment, involuntary sale or written waiver, in most cases, should be 12 conclusive to establish a bar. Because a disclaimer is effective as a refusal as of the 13 creation of the disclaimed interest, a “Mother Hubbard” or after acquired property 14 clause in a mortgage will not prevent the disclaimer of property after the mortgage 15 is executed since the disclaimant will never have had the disclaimed property.

16 This Act, unlike the 1978 Acts, specifies that “other law” may bar the right 17 to disclaim. In some States, such as Minnesota, insolvency of the disclaimant will 18 invalidate the disclaimer. (M.S.A. § 525.532 (c)(6)) In others a disclaimer by an 19 insolvent debtor is treated as a fraudulent “transfer”. See Stein v. Brown, 18 Ohio 20 St.3d 305 (1985); Pennington v. Bigham, 512 So.2d 1344 (Ala. 1987). A number 21 of States refuse to recognize a disclaimer used to qualify the disclaimant for 22 Medicaid or other public assistance. See Hinschberger v. Griggs County Social 23 Services, 499 N.W.2d 876 (N.D. 1993); Department of Income Maintenance v.
24 Watts, 211 Conn. 323 (1989), Matter of Keuning, 190 A.D.2d 1033, 593 N.Y.S.2d 25 653 (4th Dept. 1993), and Matter of Molloy, 214 A.D.2d 171, 631 N.Y.S.2d 910 26 (2nd Dept. 1995), Troy v. Hart, 116 Md.App. 468, 697 A.2d 113 (1997). It is also 27 likely that state policies will begin to address the question of disclaimers of real 28 property on which an environmental hazard is located in order to avoid imposing on 29 the State, as title holder of last resort, any resulting liability. These larger policy 30 issues are not addressed in this Act and must, therefore, continue to be addressed by 31 the States.

32 SECTION 11. RECORDING OF DISCLAIMER. If an instrument
33 transferring an interest in, or power over, property subject to a disclaimer is required 34 or permitted by law to be filed, recorded, or registered, the disclaimer may be so 35 filed, recorded, or registered. Failure to file, record, or register the disclaimer does

1 not affect its validity as to the disclaimant or persons to whom the property or 2 power passes by reason of the disclaimer.

3 Comment

4 Section 11 permits the recordation of a disclaimer of an interest in property
5 ownership of or title, that is the subject of a recording system. This section expands 6 on the corresponding provision of previous Uniform Acts that only referred to 7 permissive recording of a disclaimer of an interest in real property. The provision 8 remains permissive, and recognizes that not every disclaimer, even if of real 9 property, requires recordation. For example, if local practice in respect to devises of 10 real property involves a deed from the executor to the devisee, a disclaimer of a 11 specific devisee's interest in the real property that results in the passing of the 12 property to the residuary devisee will lead to the executor executing a deed to the 13 residuary devisee. Thus, the disclaimer need not be recorded to complete the chain 14 of title. Nevertheless, the section permits a disclaimer to be recorded when 15 necessary or advisable.

16 SECTION 12. REMEDY NOT EXCLUSIVE. This [Act] does not abridge
17 the right of a person to waive, release, disclaim, or renounce property, or an interest 18 in or power over property under any other law.

19 SECTION 13. EXISTING INTERESTS.

20 (a) This [Act] takes effect on _____.

21 (b) This [Act] applies to all interests in and powers over property regardless 22 of when they were created.

23 (c) Except as otherwise provided in Section 10, an interest in, or power 24 over, property existing on the effective date of this [Act] as to which the time for 25 delivering or filing a disclaimer under superseded law has not expired may be 26 disclaimed after the effective date of this [Act].

1 SECTION 14. UNIFORMITY OF APPLICATION AND 2 CONSTRUCTION. In applying and construing this Uniform Act, consideration 3 must be given to the need to promote uniformity of the law with respect to its 4 subject matter among the States that enact it.
